Five Firemen Hurt In Fur Store Fire

EARLY MORNING BLAZE CAUSES $10,000 LOSS

Fire Fighters Injured When Blast Shatters Windows, Scatters Glass.

KEEP FLAMES CONFINED

Fur Wraps Destroyed as Fire Hits Display Rooms; Cause Still Undetermined.

Five firemen were injured in an explosion caused by flames which early today gutted the Andrew Klein fur store, 140-42 Park avenue west, severed power and communication lines and threatened the adjoining Ohio theater which, however, was cleared of smoke during this forenoon to permit regular film presentations.

Starting from undetermined origin and discovered at 3:45 a. m., the flames caused damage to building and stocks unofficially estimated at upward to $10,000, destroying fur wraps on sale and in storage or in process of cleaning or repair.

Firemen confined the flames to the first-floor rooms of the furrier firm.

Accumulated gases in the basement, compressed by the collapse of ground surface flooring, exploded shortly after the arrival of firemen from central station under Captain LeRoy Zimmerman and Captain Lee Harley of No. 2 engine house.

Heavy plate glass show windows were shattered, pieces being hurled into and across Park avenue. Firemen John Fleming, J. Donnan, William Lay and J. W. Lowman miraculously escaped serious injury, it was said, because they were stooping over hose lines at the instant. All suffered singed eyebrows and hair and scorched faces and scalp. Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger was cut on his upper lip and Fleming came up with a gash on his nose.

Several fur coats and neckpieces, hurled from display win-

Auto Stickers Go On Sale Today At County's Auto Club

Stickers which form the 1943 licenses for automobiles went on sale at the Richland County Auto club today and for a time motorists thought they were facing a perplexing problem.

"The glue's on the wrong side of the stickers, what'll we do?" was the question directed at Auto club attaches, who were puzzled themselves.

It was soon cleared up, however, when Harold Culbert, assistant state registrar of motor vehicles, said that the musilage was inherent in the paper. He explained the sticker should be doused in water, placed against the inside of the windshield and smoothed out.

Jack Berger, secretary of the Auto club said sales were "good" this morning. There are approximately 18,000 stickers available at his office. They must be displayed on April 1.

Berger said that all motorists must present their certificate of title and their 1942 registration card before they can receive their new license.

FOR 'JUSTICE'

Cleveland Musicians Side With Philharmonic.

NEW YORK —(INS)— Cleveland orchestra musicians today pledged they would sign no contracts with the New York Philharmonic until "justice" had been given to the 14 members of the latter orchestra dismissed by Dr. Arthur Rodzinski.

The Cleveland orchestra members gave their pledge in a telegram to Calmen Fleisig, chairman of the Philharmonic symphony society orchestra's shop committee, and one of the dismissed musicians.

Point Buying Sales Few on Opening Day

Housewives Devote Time To Study; Find Shelves Well Stocked.

Mansfield housewives went to market today, armed with pocketbook, a basket and Ration Book No. 2, but contrary to the grocers' expectations, there was no heavy buying of rationed quantities of canned goods after a week-long freeze on sales.

Very few sales of canned goods were reported today by local grocers, but the few consumers visiting the stores found them well stocked with processed foodstuffs, and plainly marked with not only the price but the number of points necessary to purchase the items.

Mansfield grocers have spent the past week stocking their shelves and posting the point values of canned goods in preparation for the lifting of the freeze order, but none of the stores contacted today reported more than a few purchases of canned goods.

One Mansfield merchant stated he thought "his customers were spending the first day just looking over his stock and jotting down the number of points needed for their purchases."

Mansfield grocers were agreed, however, that it would not take long for shoppers and grocers, already accustomed to sugar and coffee rationing, to master the mechanics of the point system.

Ration points must be surrendered for these items: canned and bottled fruits and vegetables and juices; frozen fruits and vegetables; dried and dehydrated fruits; canned and bottled soups; all dried peas, beans and lentils; dried and dehydrated soups; canned and bottled baby foods, except milk and cereal.

Paul M. O'Leary, OPA rationing chief, reported that approximately 125,000,000 persons throughout the nation registered last week for Ration Book No. 2, which will be used to distribute over 200 sizes and types of rationed canned goods, and also meat about April 1.

The "A", "B" and "C" blue stamps, totalling 48 points, will be valid for purchases of pro-

FREE SEEDS?

Senator Urges Return of Old Plan to Help Gardeners.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Free seeds such as congressmen used to mail your father 20 years ago may be on the way back—to grow in Victory gardens.

As a quick step to encourage family gardens, Chairman Smith (D-SC) of the senate agriculture committee today made plans to discuss free seeds with Secretary Wickard.

"I think it would do some real good," he said in an interview. "We need anything that will bring in more food, and it wouldn't cost nearly as much as lots of practically useless things the administration has done."

Senator Capper (R-Kas), a member of the agriculture committee, said he certainly would vote for reciving the plan.

The injured were Allen P. James, 46, and Wesley W. Dunn, 40.

Yank Gunners In Tunisia Stop Nazi Tanks

Somewhere in the desert (upper photo) German tanks approach seemingly innocuous straw sheep sheds which housed Nazi field pieces. The tank crews were unaware that on the hill overlooking this scene were poised Yankee gun crews waiting for the tanks, probably Mark IV's, to come within range. At the proper moment the Yank gunners poured their salvos into the enemy. Bottom photo shows remains of the tanks after the engagement, charred steel and smoke.

WORKERS START $59,000 DRIVE

Red Cross Volunteers Begin Solicitation For Big War Fund Quota.

Red Cross banners decorated Mansfield streets and Red Cross displays were arranged in some downtown shop windows this morning as a volunteer army of approximately 900 Richland countians began the war fund campaign by which they expect to raise $59,000 by March 15.

Mansfield's share in the state's quota of $6,993,900 is $45,000. The state, like the nation at large, has set March 30 as a deadline for their campaign but Mansfield, Shelby and Richland county workers hope to reach their goal in half that period.

Workers will report their progress daily, according to L. W. Birch, chairman of the drive. Pro-

He had been called into service as a captain in April, 1941. In World War I he was awarded the British Military Cross and the U. S. Silver Star.

Mme. Chiang made no statement to reporters but was whisked away by motor to her hotel to prepare for an official noon reception at city hall. A tour of New York's gaily decorated Chinatown will follow.

Mansfielder Wounded In Tank Battle In Africa, Parents Told

Lieut. Dean F. Chatlain, 335 Cedar street, was seriously wounded in action Feb. 1 on the North African front, his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Byron S. Chatlin, were notified today by the war department.

The message to his parents gave no details of his injuries. It merely said he was "seriously wounded" and added that additional reports on his condition would be given them as soon as they are received.

Lieut. Chatlain had spent three years at Ohio university before entering the service.

From another fighting front, word was received through an Associated Press dispatch today that Lieut. Arthur L. Gregg of, Fredericktown, has been credited with downing a Japanese plane in smashing a Jap raid on an Allied air base in northeast India.

Fifteen American pilots shot down 28 enemy aircraft. Only nine of the more than two score enemy planes are believed to have returned to their base.

Lend-Lease Includes 6,200 Tanks, 85,000 Other War Vehicles For Soviet.

STETTINIUS TESTIFIES

Tells Senate Committee of Aid To Britain, Other United Nations.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON — Lend Lease Administrator Edward R. Stettinius, Jr., told the senate foreign relations committee today that under the lend-lease program the United States and Great Britain have sent 5,600 planes, 6,200 tanks and 85,000 other military motor vehicles to Soviet Russia.

Testifying on behalf of a bill to extend for one year the life of the lend-lease program, he said that it had resulted in "a genuine pooling of the available services of all of the United Nations." He revealed that the United States is supplying 44 countries with lend-lease food and materials and said that "lend-lease in reverse" has resulted in contributions of food, equipment nd resources of incalculable proportions to maintain American armies on foreign soil.

The house foreign afafirs committee approved a companion bill Saturday and it is scheduled to come up for house debate late this week. Stettinius was the first witness before the senate committee.

Up to Jan. 1, 1943, Stettinius said, the United Kingdom received $2,440,000,000 of lend lease supplies, including 10 per cent of all the food it consumes. The Soviet Union received $1,300,000,000 of aid, including planes, tanks, trucks, 130,000 sub-machine guns, more than 98,000,000 pounds of TNT and Toluol, 174,000,000 pounds of copper and brass and large amounts of food, munitions and raw materials.

Shipments to the Middle and Far East aggregated $1,650,000,000, including those to Australia and New Zealand. Among the chief implements of war which were shipped to Egypt were more than

FARMERS TURN DOWN SOIL PLAN

Conservation District Loses as 519 Land Owners Vote 2 to 1 Against It.

Richland county will not become a soil conservation district.

With only 519 of the estimated 2,000 farmers owners eligible to vote casting their ballots in Saturday's referendum, the proposal was defeated by an unofficial tabulation of 362-157, better than a two to one figure.

Last minute opposition voiced by a Richland Marketing Quota Protest association undoubtedly played some part in defeat of the measure although supporters, among foremost of which was the Richland County Fish and Game Protective association, blamed the light vote equally as much.

Only one of the county's four voting places gave the measure a majority, and it was less than the required 65 per cent. The precinct voting to establish the district was that in the extension office of the courthouse where the vote was 93 to 88.

Other voting places were in Shelby, Bellville and Shenandoah.

Death Comes To Capital's Famed 'Peanut Vendor'

WASHINGTON —(UP)— Steve Vasilakos, 61, vendor of peanuts to presidents and kings and in recent months popular salesman of war bonds, died penniless.

Steve was known to thousands of capital tourists in peacetime as the "White House peanut man." He died at Gallinger hospital yesterday after a long illness.

His attorney said that although Steve made thousands of dollars at his little stand near the White House which he set up during the presidency of Theodore Roosevelt, he was a "soft touch" for anyone with a sad story.

He had no relatives in this country. It was understood that he is survived by a divorced wife and possibly three sons, who have always lived in Greece.

Apparently dashing all reports of a forthcoming separate peace between Finland and Soviet Russia, the Helsinki radio quoted Ryti as saying:

"The war will be continued, and it demands our complete attention."

Earlier, the German radio asserted that "surprising developments" might be expected in the Finnish political situation during the day.

Advance Three Miles Despite High Casualties

M'Arthur Warns Of Impending Jap Move Against Australia.

(By Associated Press)

The United Nations were put on notice by Gen. Douglas MacArthur today that the Japanese, who for months have not attempted any large-scale offensive enterprise, are concentrating their main strength in the ring of island stretching for 2,000 miles or more to the north of Australia.

"Our air reconnaissance over the past weeks reports a constant and growing reinforcement in all categories of enemy strength in the island perimeter enveloping the upper half of Australia," said the Allied headquarters communique issued in Australia.

"The enemy seems to be concentrating his main effort in preparation on this front. Such an assemblage of major force indicates he is taking up a position in readiness."

This announcement was matched by a statement by Admiral Chester W. Nimitz, commander in chief of the United States Pacific fleet, indicating the U. S. navy might have some cards up its sleeve.

"We are now at the crossroads of the Pacific campaign," Admiral Nimitz said in a broadcast sponsored by the American Red Cross.

"From now on the going will be tougher as we undertake the task of driving the enemy from prepared positions he has been building in the conquered areas.

"It is our job to destroy his ships and planes and to neutralize his island strongholds as we drive toward the positions from where we can reach with our shells and bombs his industrial nerve centers."

This statement was taken in some quarters as a hint the navy was about ready for some offensive action aimed eventually at bringing not only American air power, but American artillery, within range of the Japanese homeland.

Meanwhile American and Australian troops which have smashed one Japanese army of 15,000 in Use Tanks, Infantry To Pierce Allies Positions West Of Tunis.

(By Associated Press)

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS IN NORTH AFRICA—Axis attacks toward Beja, in northern Tunisia, were disclosed today to have progressed three miles beyond Sidi Nsir, which is 18 miles northeast of Beja and 40 miles west of Tunis, despite great losses inflicted by Allied ground and air forces.

This disclosure came shortly after an Allied headquarters communique announced enemy attacks in the north generally were on a reduced scale but that northeast of Beja the Axis threw in tanks and infantry all day in an effort to pierce Allied positions.

Bad weather restricted operations in the south but Flying Fortresses carried out one of the heaviest raids of the campaign on Cagliari, Axis supply port, where four ships were reported hit.

The Germans hurled their full weight into the Beja thrust after being thrown back initially, it was stated, and Allied forward units fought to the last man, taking a heavy toll, before ground was given.

The exact position of the Allied line remained in doubt but it was apparent from the three days of steady attack that the Germans had not been able to make a definite break in the Allied battlefront.

Even in the three-mile Beja thrust, the Germans are in danger of being cut off if the Allies continue to hold their positions behind and on each side of the enemy, which it now appears they are doing.

Today's headquarters bulletin announced continued Allied advances in last week's battle area centering on the Kasserine pass.

"In southern Tunisia," the war bulletin said, "our patrols yesterday continued their advance from the Kasserine pass and toward Sbeitla without meeting any opposition from the enemy."

Sbeitla is northeast of Kasserine.

"In the north," it added, "the

SOFTENING: British Give Sub Base Its Hardest Pounding

(By United Press)

LONDON — Hundreds of British bombers blasted the German U-boat base of St. Nazaire, France, with 1,000 tons of bombs in a "thunderbolt" saturation raid last night, it was announced today, while speculation grew that the Allies had begun softening Hitler's European fortress for an invasion.

Carrying the most sustained Anglo-American aerial offensive of the war past the 72-hour mark, Britain's biggest aircraft delivered the main weight of the atack in a little over 30 minutes.

A British announcement said the weight of the assault appeared to swamp the enemy defenses. Few German night fighters were seen.

Other British bombers raided objectives in western Germany, the air ministry announced.

Five bombers were reported missing from the raids.

A Royal Canadian Air Force communique said Canadian Halifax and Wellington bombers participated in the St. Nazaire assault. Two Canadian planes are missing, the communique said.

Every type of bomb in the British arsenal, ranging from 8,000-pound super block busters to two-pound incendiaries, was dumped on the docks, submarine pens and other installations at St. Nazaire, which lies at the northern end of the Bay of Biscay.

The communique described the attack as "very heavy" indicating that hundreds of four-engined

(By Associated Press)

BULLETIN

MOSCOW—(U.P.)—The Red army reported it gained new ground west of Kharkov today and beat off powerful attacks in the Donets basin, where German armored forces had scored some success in a crucial battle swaying back and forth for three weeks.

LONDON—A desperate German effort to stave off further disasters in Russia apparently has checked the forces of Gen. N. F. Vatutin in the Donets basin, but the Russians reported today the Red army was continuing to grind forward west of Kharkov toward the rail junction of Poltava and the Dnieper river. The Russian midnight communique did not concede the German claim that Kramatorsk and Lozovaya, south of Kharkov, had been recaptured by the Germans, but it did say the Germans were counter-attacking furiously and "hastily bringing up fresh troops and throwing them into action."

The German communique, as broadcast by the Berlin radio, said Kramatorsk and Lozovaya were taken by storm and "particularly high losses in men and material were inflicted on the enemy." Some units of the Russian army have been enveloped and are "gradually being destroyed," the German communique said.

The Russian communique, issued

"We shall go into conference immediately," Mary said, then turned with a smile to Noel. "Get your idea factory working," she told him, and he looked down at her adoringly.

"You have all the ideas," he said. Then I said good-bye and went quickly to the elevator, feeling heady elation at the accomplishment of a task that had seemed impossible.

I found Katharine and my father waiting, and their disturbed faces cleared as I came in.

"You are just in time," my father told me. "Room Service just called saying dinner will be sent up in five minutes."

"I'm sorry to be so late," I said, "but Noel wanted to be very generous and heroic; resented taking Mary out of her role so that Steve could appear. He said he would be glad to furnish an accident for Steve that would not be pretended."

"Good lad!" my father said surprisingly. "I wish I could give him the chance, but that is impossible just now. How did you bring him around?"

"It was really Mary who managed it," I said, abridging my story, for I must not reveal the tender love scene I had witnessed. "She told Noel she was fearfully tired, and would welcome a rest of a few days. She painted a rosy picture of the quiet time they would have together, and I backed that up with Katharine's observation that she did not like Mary's color. See that you elaborate on that, Katrina," I added, turning to her.

"I'll do that little thing," she said. "And now, where do you want the dinner table?"

My father rose to help, and by the time the expected knock sounded the central part of the room was cleared.

Room Service.

The two men my father admitted quickly set two tables with service for four, with assorted hors d'oeuvres on both and on one a steaming soup tureen. Then on a third table they arranged the salad, dessert and coffee cups and saucers. Portable heated ovens held the hot dishes of the main course, and the coffee pot.

"Do you wish us to serve?" one of the waiters asked, after I had checked the items.

"No indeed," I said. "We will serve ourselves."

"Very well," the man said. "Be careful in taking the hot dishes from the oven, and the steak should be eaten as soon as possible."

"Thank you," I said. "We will remember."

I signed the slip he presented and tipped him, and with a sigh of relief put up the night chain as soon as the two were gone. Then I summoned Georges and Halloran and brought out the extra dishes necessary to serve five instead of four.

We were all hungry and the dinner was good. It was a pleasure to see Georges' enjoyment of it, for Georges, we knew, was drawing his first breath free from terror in weeks.

We were discussing the cherry tarts and I was preparing to pour the coffee when a knock sounded at the door.

"Quick, Georges," my father said in a low tone, "into the bedroom with you. Take your dessert and demi tasse with you."

I hastily poured his coffee, and he walked swiftly into the bedroom. My father took Georges' chair away from the table while I hastily hid the extra dishes.

Then I nodded to my father. He went to open the door to the length of the night chair, and his words of greeting sent a chill down my spine.

"Ah, Mr. Milner!" he said. "Is anything wrong?"

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, March 2.

A moderately successful and satisfactory day is presaged from the ruling astral forces, although there are contingencies arising to be managed with prudence. There are some surprising reversals which may require shrewd action as well as the endorsement of those in high places.

Those whose birthday it is may assist in placing their affairs on a sound and productive basis by resisting temptations to extravagance. Lavish outlay or indulgence would be hazardous. While those in high place may be cooperative, yet public associations may not be amicable.

A child born on this day may be active and versatile, studious and ambitious, although predisposed to extravagance and indulgence. It will be sincere and dependable in private relations.

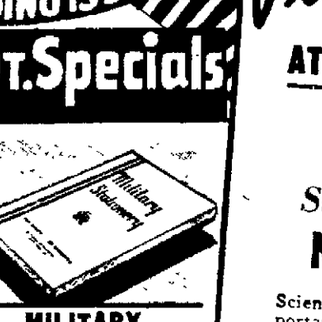
BREAK UP HIS PLAN

There is one situation in which you don't want to prevent the declarer from using the dummy's trumps to ruff losers of his own hand. When it exists, you really should make him ruff in the dummy if you can. That is when the dummy contains a threatening side suit, which can be used for discards only if the declarer is able to win a trump round in the dummy after the side suit has been established. Then the forcing of the dummy's trumps for ruffing purposes can break up his enture plan.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♥	Pass

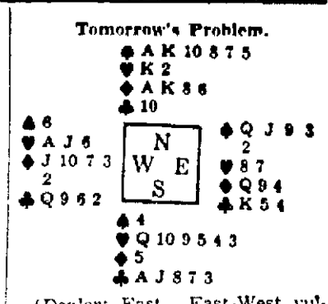
Unfamiliarity with one important play kept East from beating that contract. He won the lead of the club 3 with the K and switched at once to the diamond 9, to lead through strength and up to weakness. West won the Q with the A and put East in again with the club A. Now East made his fatal mistake. Hoping thaat West had the diamond J guarded, which he did, East led the diamond 8, which South won with the K.

Now South sailed on to success. He scored the spade A and Q, the dummy's two top hearts, ruffed a third heart to set up the suit, and then led the spade 8 to the K. That winning of the third trump round in dummy enabled him to use the two set-up hearts for discards of a club and a diamond, giving him his contract.

If East, after winning the second club, had led a third one - or even West could have cashed his club Q and led the third club when he was in with the diamond A—the declarer would not have had a chance. That club could have been ruffed in dummy, but there would have been no chance than to get discards on the hearts, as South could not have reached the dummy after that suit was established except on the second round of trumps, while East still had one. In a nutshell, success of South's contract depended on winning the third trump round in dummy after hearts were set up—impossible if the dummy had to ruff once.

Tomorrow's Problem.



(Dealer: East. East-West vulnerable.)

What principle of bidding should North keep in mind on this deal, when South shows his suits in the soundest manner over North's calls?

CAR STRIKES DEER

BINGHAMTON, N. Y.—(U.P.)—There was very little traffic but it was enough to confuse a jaywalking deer here. The 100-pound denizen of the forest was struck by an automobile and suffered a leg fracture. A policeman destroyed it. And Broome county jail inmates ate venison.

SEE FIRST CARS AFTER WAR SAME AS '42 MODELS

Detroit Motor Builders Believe Better Automobiles May Follow Later.

DETROIT — (U.P.) — Americans who expect the automotive industry to supply them with ultra-streamlined passenger cars immediately after the war is over are in for a surprise.

The industy, bending its back to help win the war as quickly as possible, believes the first post-war car will be virtually the same as the 1942 model with possibly a few minor changes.

The motoring public probably will have to wait a year or more after the war is over for the so-called "car of the future," because the industry's designers and engineers are knee-deep in "model changes" for war products.

C. E. Wilson, president of General Motors Corporation, in peacetime the industry's largest producer of passenger cars, declared recently that if any company turns out a "radically-different car immediately after the war is over "then it has been cheating a little on its war program."

"The post-war car," Wilson said, "will be substantially the same as the one bought prior to Pearl Harbor, with perhaps a different color scheme or some minor change."

George T. Christopher, president of the Packard Motor Car company long a supplier of automobiles for the "carriage trade" agrees with Wilson that the immediate post-war car will be virtually unchanged from present new models.

However, he explained the industry's experience with new materials and technique on the war program would contribute toward "more efficient, more economical and better motor car transportation in the years to follow the war."

Cost of an aircraft engine, Christopher said, is "about $10 a pound," while the cost of the average car is only 32 cents a pound.

"How many of the elements that make up the $10 a pound aircraft engine, incorporated in the car of the future will the public buy?" he asked. "The motor buying public can only answer that one. Here again we run into post-war economy. Income, taxes, living costs and general economic conditions that will follow the war are still unknown factors."

Availability of materials and fuel, Christopher added, also will have "a marked bearing" on the car of the future.

Materials have been brought into new practices in war work and their adoption to the automobile may bring about interesting results, he said. "Silver, for example, never used before in automobiles, is contributing to major engine improvements."

The silver connecting rod in the Packard-built Rolls-Royce aircraft engine, Christopher explained, "takes more stress than all corresponding bearings in an 8-cylinder car engine" in the post-war automobile.

Although the first cars after the war may be unchanged, designers long have toyed with superstreamlined models having aero-dynamic properties; In many of these "dream" cars the engine and the luggage compartment have exchanged places with the former behind the rear seat.

Musical snuff-boxes were in vogue in the 18th Century.

WAAC'S ASK FOR OVERSEAS DUTY

Letter From North Africa Stirs Enthusiasm For Service Abroad.

FORT DES MOINES, Ia.—(INS)—Ninety per cent of the 10,000 women in the WAAC have expressed desire to be sent overseas, and enthusiasm among trainees was boosted by the first letter from an overseas member, officers at Fort Des Moines said today.

The letter came from First Officer Alene Dresnal, formerly of St. Paul, Minn., to her sister, Officer Candidate Grace Dreznal.

Officer Dresnal and four others who received their training here now are at an army headquarters in North Africa.

Her letter was written from London, where the five WAAC officers paused briefly before going to Africa.

"Life is very full," she wrote "and it will be fun seeing you again and telling you of the things we have done. Blackouts are really something; I'm lost most of the time."

She wrote that the food is not "half bad," and that she had just mastered the English coin values.

First Officer Dreznal, whose rank is equivalent to that of an army captain, was commissioned Aug. 3, and was assigned to executive work here until she was sent overseas early in December.

Montgomery Ward's Statement TO THE NATIONAL WAR LABOR BOARD

February 27, 1943

National War Labor Board
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:

A National War Labor Board panel has recommended that the Board issue another order against Montgomery Ward and Co. imposing upon Wards' six large stores in Denver, Detroit and New York City:

1. A form of closed shop, called "maintenance of membership," together with a check-off of union dues from wages.

2. Compulsory arbitration of any question the union wishes to raise.

Wards objects to the proposed order for these reasons:

1. The War Labor Board is without authority. Congress, the only law-making authority under the Constitution, has not empowered the Board to order any employer to adopt these requirements.

2. The War Labor Board, by ordering a closed shop in this case, will be furthering disrespect for constitutional authority. The Board is attempting to assume a power to make rules and laws by executive fiat alone. The public is being deceived into believing that the Board's orders have the force of law, when in fact they have no such effect. Employees are being confused and deceived into believing that their government desires them to join labor unions when in fact the national policy as declared by Congress is that employees are free to join or not, as they wish. Thus the Board is destroying the very essence of democracy, the right of the people to make laws through those whom the people elect for that purpose.

3. The War Labor Board, by promiscuously granting some form of the closed shop, is destroying the laws constitutionally enacted by Congress. The National Labor Relations Act endorses, guarantees and encourages the process of collective bargaining. The orders of this Board, however, have led the unions to abandon collective bargaining. The union in this case has rushed to the War Labor Board in the conviction that the Board will grant more than it could obtain through collective bargaining, the procedure which Congress has sought to protect and encourage. Other unions are following the same course. Thus the Board, by this proceeding and by its policies as proclaimed in other proceedings of this nature, is nullifying the public policy of the nation as declared by Congress and set forth in the National Labor Relations Act. Laws passed by Congress, the only law-making authority under our Constitution, can not legally be repealed by executive decree.

4. The proposed order would require Wards to violate the law. It would require Wards, first, to interfere with the free choice of its employees to resign from the union; second, to give support to the union by a check-off of union dues; and third, to discriminate against employees if they resign their membership in the union, all in direct violation of the National Labor Relations Act.

5. Wards operates in a highly competitive field composed of one million seven hundred fifty thousand retail establishments. It is unfair to impose burdens upon Wards and not upon those with whom it is in competition. If the retail industry is to be subjected to the closed shop and arbitration requirements, they should be legislated by Congress and applied uniformly against all retail establishments.

6. The proposed order would require Wards to surrender to outside arbitrators the final decision on all matters which the union may wish to treat as grievances. Thus Wards' sixty thousand shareholders would be deprived of the right to direct, through the management they select, the affairs of the corporation they own.

7. Under this "maintenance of membership" form of closed shop, employees are not free to resign from the union without losing their jobs. Wards is compelled to discharge every union member who fails to maintain his union membership in good standing (non-payment of dues, etc.). "Maintenance of membership" is the starting phase which inevitably leads to the full closed shop and a labor monopoly.

8. The proposed order violates the fundamental principles of liberty. Liberty requires that an employee be free to join, to refuse to join, or to resign from a union without losing his job. Liberty requires that an employer be free to employ the person best suited for the work.

9. Wards has consistently defended these principles of liberty. In times of peace, Wards successfully denied all demands for the closed shop in any form. Two years ago the Teamsters' Union, in an effort to force a closed shop, maintained a vicious seven months' strike against Wards' retail stores and mail order houses on the Pacific Coast. Two mail order houses and six retail stores were forced to close, forty-three other stores were picketed, and Wards suffered damages exceeding two million dollars. Employees were slugged, customers abused, and property destroyed. The railroads, the express companies, the truckers and finally the United States Post Office obeyed the demands of the union and, with total disregard for their obligations to the public and in violation of law, refused service to Wards and its customers. Nevertheless, Wards, while announcing its willingness to bargain and to contract with the union, refused to compromise the principles it was defending. The strike did not end until the union, in writing, withdrew its demand for a closed shop.

Even if the War Labor Board had the authority which it lacks, it should not, in time of war, when sacrifices are demanded of all, grant to any union a privilege it could not have obtained in time of peace.

Wards has no quarrel with legitimate union practices. However, Wards strongly opposes the War Labor Board's illegitimate attempts to sabotage our laws and to socialize all industry, ostensibly as a part of the war effort.

Wards desires to continue to obey the law, to preserve constitutional government, to maintain management by ownership, to remain competitive, and to leave its employees free to belong or not to belong to a union as they wish.

In accordance with these principles Wards must reject any proposals which require it to enter into contracts which it believes to be illegal, or to surrender principles which it considers to be fundamental. In so doing, Wards is taking the course which good citizenship requires.

I THE CAPITAL-- By Raymond Clapper

HINGTON—The housewife who has wanted do something to help with the war has her portunity now. She can help save the gov- it from the consequences of its lack of fore- by throwing herself fully into the task of ing the food rationing system and fitting er kitchen. And when it's over, housewives have medals.

point system of rationing is complicated.

Yet the housewives of England make it work, so American women can do it. Just after our plan was announced, the United Press interviewed women standing in food queues in London and asked them to give advice to American women. One English woman urged that rationing books not be allowed to fall into the hands of husbands because she said men were unable to understand the point system and never could make it work.

is correct so far as I am concerned. I have over the charts and find it requires more etic than I command to figure out the im amount of food value that points will ie. This is actually a new kind of money. will have to learn how to economize with point money as they economize with dollar If they are obliged to pinch tight with noney also, in addition to economizing with point money, then the business is doubly ated. I know it is necessary but I want it.

ead of making a sudden 50 per cent cut in and processed foods the government might ve introduced this point system more gradu- ith an earlier beginning, and a warm-up vith a very limited number of articles, semi- preferably.

I now our rationing has been largely that ries or semi-luxuries, except in the case of fuel. This food rationing, and particularly the including of most staples in the rationed list, involves the most elemental need of the human family. Housewives who are not careful will exhaust their points long before the month is over and will face serious food difficulty for lack of food coupons. It is not a matter to trifle with.

Yet the government is casually pitching the housewives of the nation into that hard task of making the limited number of points stretch through the month without any training in the operation of the system. If the housewives don't themselves make the system work, we shall have the most terrific confusion within three or four weeks, with a probable breakdown of the system. That would be a catastrophe and we can be saved from it only if the housewives save us.

Thus on the ability of thirty-five million housewives to master the point system and on their cooperation in making it work, depends our food security for the time being until summer fresh vegetables come in to ease the short supplies.

This means that the housewife must watch the fluctuating point prices—not just the money prices—of various foods. She must know the relative nourishment in the different foods and compare the sizes and point values and figure out the cheapest cost per unit of nourishment, making allowance also, of course, for the things her family will or won't eat, even under pressure of rationed shortage.

Why didn't the government see the necessity of this coming? Why was the matter allowed to ride just because we had the biggest crop in history last year, thanks to abnormally perfect weather?

Now a sudden change more violent than anything yet attempted on the home front is necessary. It faces every food merchant with a crisis that may wreck many of them.

The best we can hope for now is that housewives will save the situation, make the point system work, and prevent the war effort from suffering the damage that otherwise would result because of the lack of more effective food planning.

AIR ENOUGH-- By Westbrook Pegler

If I want to go somewhere I look up the address in the phone book and tell the taxi driver and he takes me. I never could tell Massachusetts avenue from Connecticut avenue, and I don't know what street the supreme court is on nor the capitol. I have never been in a street car or a bus and I wouldn't know ine to take to go anywhere. I would prob- nd up at the Mayflower, anyway. I always at the Mayflower."

all there was the case of the southern who was driven out of office by an upstart t who campaigned the state wearing over- driving a steaming Model-T Ford with a diator, with no campaign issue but a menu e incumbent's hotel.

s," the upstart would say, "I want you to ow your senator lives in Washington. You s ought to see him setting in the lap of luxury eating out of the flesh-pots. Here is it wrote down on the menu. That there menu is a French word meaning what they have got fo' dinner today. Here it is 'terrapin, $4.00, fo' dolla's for a he'pin' of cooter. Here is another, 'caviar, $3.00; that's fish eggs, imported from Communist Russia, or 'steak, fo' persons, $8.00—eight dolla's for a steak for fo' people, friends! The defending senator was defeated by an opponent who then went to Washington, broke out his store clothes, tailored at $165 a suit in New York, and became one of the social high rollers of the capital.

Our subject may have been unduly cautious, although there is no harm in playing safe. It might not be wise of a presidential candidate to admit that he never had ridden the po' man's limousine in all his years in Washington and had been so indifferent to the landmarks that tourists visit in awe that he didn't even acquire a general idea of the layout of the city.

But the truth is that the national capital, though crowded, is home to few of those who live there and Mrs. Roosevelt, herself, recently related that, unfamiliar with the public transportation system, she took a street car and discovered herself going in the wrong direction.

Even of those who do jam the public transportation in the dusk of dawn and evening, struggling to work in painful masses, it is likely that most know only their own lines and go by instinct. The other markings are mysterious, signifying nothing to one who wants to go somewhere and not just wherever the car may wander. And, I seem to remember a little two-headed calf story in the papers recently of a motorman who got lost and had to ask a cop the way back to his route.

He was lucky to find a cop who knew, for most people are just strangers there, themselves.

WORKERS STICK TO THEIR JOBS IN PLANE PLANT

Union Council Holds Parley on Pay Hike Demand But Men Maintain Production.

(By United Press)

SEATTLE—The deadline of the Boeing Aircraft worker's ultimatum to the war labor board passed early today without any interruption in the production of Flying Fortresses.

The district council of their union, the International Association of Machinists (AFL), began a 24-hour meeting at 12:30 a. m., but the "graveyard" shifts of the big plants here and in a suburb remained on the production lines while some 35 off-duty workers began the meeting with card and chess games. They will be replaced at the "meeting" by some members of the graveyard shifts who are ordinarily off duty.

District and national officials of the union had taken the matter out of the hands of the officials of the Boeing local who had delivered an ultimatum to the war labor board that unless its decision on the demands of aircraft workers for pay increases was forthcoming by midnight last night, a "24-hour protest meeting" would stop production of Flying Fortresses.

Announcements on the radio and on the loud-speaker systems at the plants carried yesterday and last night appeals to the Boeing workers to stay on the job.

Roy W. Brown, a vice president of the international union, telegraphed them from Washington: "Maintain absolute control at mass meetings only for those off shift. Situation grave in congress and senate for aircraft workers and all labor."

Harvey W. Brown, president of the international, telegraphed: "There must be no suspension of work."

In Washington, the war labor board was completing its action on the aircraft workers' demands for pay increases and may announce it early this week.

Their case has been pending before the board for eight months and last Thursday, the Boeing workers halted production of Flying Fortresses for three hours in order to attend a mass meeting protesting the board's slowness.

In the Los Angeles area, Lockheed and Vega Aircraft workers held a meeting yesterday to protest the lack of a labor board decision and planned another one for Wednesday. At San Diego, union members employed at the Consolidated Aircraft plants planned a meeting tomorrow.

CONFER AGAIN ON LABOR BILL

Little Hope of Compromise on Measure Relaxing Female Restrictions Seen.

(By United Press)

COLUMBUS—A fourth hearing of the controversial Ross bill easing the employment restrictions against women and children will be held tonight with little indication of a compromise being reached between labor and management.

Some legislators were hopeful that the hearing before the senate commerce and labor committee on the measure—the latest "hot potato" to hit the assembly since the time change imbroglio—would effect an agreement in order to aid Ohio's hard-pressed war industries.

But that a compromise was possible remained doubtful. Last Thursday's committee hearing produced strong opposition to the present bill from Ted Silvey, secretary of the Ohio CIO council.

Silvey proposed a labor commission to decide when and in what industries and under what circumstances there should be relaxation of hours of employment of women and children.

The administration, however, already has indicated it is opposed to any roving commission with such powers.

A legal technicality was raised concerning the Ross bill indicating it might not be constitutional. The bill will suspend certain sections of labor laws for the duration, but the constitution forbids the legislature from suspending laws. Certain sections of the laws would have to be repealed, it was pointed out, and then re-enacted at the end of the war.

ILLNESS FATAL

GALION — David Owen Walnum, six-months-old son of Glennard and Mrs. Eva Spencer Walnum, 904 Fairview avenue, died Sunday after a week's illness. The parents, two sisters and two brothers survive. Funeral services will be held at 4 p. m. Tuesday at the residence, Rev. W. N. Robertson officiating. Burial will be in Fairview cemetery.

Park avenue west and Mulberry street intersection is becoming a "blind spot" in traffic, or something. At 3:30 a. m. today Marshall Haley, Indianapolis, parked his tractor and trailer on Park avenue west near Weldon avenue and entered a diner to eat. When he stepped outside he couldn't find his equipment. Finally he discovered it piled against the front steps railing of First Lutheran church. He told Police Captain Paul Whipp and Lieutenant Eugene Hartnett brakes apparently had let loose, the vehicle coasting northward, across the street, over a whiteway light standard and into the church steps.

Mannie Culver, 317 East Third street, told police he's convinced his garage is a total flop when contemplated as a "safety deposit" vault. Arriving home early Sunday, he left $50 in various silver denominations in his auto. The money was in wrappers to be taken to a bank today, but this morning Mannie didn't have the money or the wrappers either. He told Detective Lee Remy and Plainclothesman Howard Schuck that someone pried the garage door lock with a screwdriver and sprung the lock of a car door with the same tool.

Carl Heilman, proprietor of the Shady Lawn diner on Park avenue west, today was receiving the plaudits of firemen who for four hours battled flames in the A. Klein fur store adjoining the Ohio theater early today. Throughout the chilling hours Heilman supplied steaming coffee and sandwiches to the firefighters. Firemen recalled also that Capt. Richard L. Gutterman of the Volunteers of America served coffee and food to the firemen who for eight hours battled flames at the Hartman Electric company the night of Jan. 12.

MAN KILLS 4, DIES IN FALL

Shoots Parents, Wife, Young Son; Breaks Neck Trying to Dispose of Bodies.

(By United Press)

AUBURN, Cal.—Amos Latshaw, 38, shot and killed his mother and father, his wife and their young son, then died of a broken neck when he fell in a well while trying to dispose of the bodies, authorities believed today.

The bodies of Latshaw and his wife, Olive, 39, were found in the well. Mrs. Latshaw had been shot through the head. Latshaw had no marks on his body, no water in his lungs, but his neck was broken, Sheriff Charles Silva said.

"The conclusion is that Amos killed all four of them and started to throw their bodies in the well, taking his wife's first," Silva said. "It looks as if he had been pulled in with her. There is no curbing around the well."

Sheriff Silva said the well would be pumped dry in an effort to find the gun. He said Latshaw was known to have had a .38 caliber automatic pistol and he believed a .38 had been used to kill the others.

Latshaw's father, Charles Clarence Latshaw, 57, was shot in the chest and elbow. His mother, Bertha Bell Latshaw, 55, was shot through the right temple. The boy, Charles, 6, was shot twice, one bullet entering his head and the other piercing his lower jaw.

The bodies of the elder Latshaws and the boy were found in the ranchhouse. Silva estimated the deaths occurred two weeks ago.

LOSE HOPE FOR 69 TRAPPED IN MONTANA MINE

Rescue Crews Take Out Three Bodies, Fail to Contact Others in Shaft.

(By International News Service)

BEARCREEK, Mont.—Rescue crews worked desperately today in the explosion-wrecked Smith Coal mine near Bearcreek with little hope that the 69 miners still entombed would be found alive.

Only three bodies had been removed from the mine early today. Two were identified, Ignace Marinchek and Dewey Hardy.

Three other miners, critically injured, were taken from the mine shortly after the explosion Saturday and oxygen was administered to them at the nearby Red Lodge hospital.

An earlier report said that 17 bodies had been recovered, but W. A. Romek, a mine foreman, said he had checked and that this was incorrect.

Hope of saving those still trapped faded rapidly as the rescuers ran into fresh difficulties. Nearly 60 members of the rescue crews collapsed from the poisonous fumes in the mine and were brought to the surface to be resuscitated.

Six of the rescue crew who ran into the dreaded "black damp" were in such serious condition that they were removed to Billings after receiving emergency treatment at Red Lodge.

With J. Burke Clemons, Montana's state industrial accident commission chief already at the mine, Gov. Sam Ford rushed from the state capital at Helena to take personal charge of the rescue work.

All air pumps into the mine were destroyed by the force of the explosion, the worst in Montana coal mining history.

"We have had no contact with the men still trapped," a Smith coal mine official said. "We have no knowledge whether they survived the explosion. However, we are rushing rescue operations as fast as they can be maintained."

State officials said the survivors of the disaster will be paid by the state's mine insurance department. Each widow also will receive $15 a week for 400 weeks, and additional sums will be paid for the children of each victim, state officials at the scene declared.

Two Tie for All-Events Crown In Ohio Moose Tourney

Sport Podge by REX HESS

Dear Rex:

Time has come when we think of that round of golf next summer. However if we're going to play golf, we must have golf balls, so I'm writing you this note to have you remind golfers to turn in their old golf balls now so we can have the recovered balls back by the start of the season.

Yours truly,
Boyd S. Crall.

Boyd has something there, of course, and golf balls will not be the least of our worries when it's hay-making time in the valley, a time when usually our worries are all wrapped up in such things as shanks and slices and hoops and tops and pulls and dubs and jabbing putts that roll in every direction but the one leading to the cup.

Some courses had a rule last year that you couldn't buy a new ball without turning in an old one, and I imagine that rule may be extended this summer. But the guys who hoard practice balls as full of smiles as Christmas morning, can do the cause a lot of good by cutting loose with a few of those old whistlers.

In the land of the dandelion and thistle,
Save me from smilers that slice and whistle.

But if Boyd wants to do a little worrying at this time of year, there is real cause for worry over whether the golf courses will be able to operate this year.

It isn't so much a question of getting permission to operate, as it is getting gasoline ration for golf course tractors, and manpower to keep the layouts in shape.

Whether the rationing boards and manpower commissions will look upon golf courses as essential to the war effort and morale, both service and civilian, is something neither of those boards have indicated as yet. It takes a lot of work to keep up a golf course.

There was a story out of Chicago the other day saying that servicemen in uniform would be permitted free play on all Chicago district courses.

This is nothing new. The same rule held good at Possum Run and Coolridge courses here in Mansfield last summer. And undoubtedly will be the rule this year.

I suspected in the Chicago story a silent plea to the powers that be in Washington to give the golf courses the men and equipment needed to keep the golf courses open.

I've a hunch that golf courses near service camps will be given the men and equipment, even if the rest are forced to close down. One former News-Journal B-league golfer wrote me some time ago: "There are plenty of golf balls here—for the officer—not me."

Freeman Leads Muzzle Loaders

R. Freeman led the Mansfield Muzzle Loader Rifle club Saturday with a 666 percentage with A. Wagner second at 414 and G. Lantz third at 379.

Freeman also took the string measure honors with a 2.10 inch measure for three shots. E. Adams had 3.38 and J. Adams 3.45.

G. Lantz took the 50-yard group shoot with three shots measuring .85 inches across. Freeman had 1.92 and E. Adams 2.43.

In the string match measured by the added distance from center of each of three shots G. Lantz was first with 1.04, J. Baldinger second with 1.22 and third with 2.02 which represented some fine shooting.

Whiz Kids Ready to Take Title

Go Through Formality of Beating Chicago.

(By International News Service)

THE undefeated University of Illinois basketball team was all set today to take over the Western conference basketball championship for the second consecutive year.

All that remained was the formality of defeating the University of Chicago tonight at Champaign, Ill., a task at which it hardly is conceivable the Illini could fail since the Maroons have lost their last 38 games.

A crowd of 19,700 jammed the Chicago stadium Saturday night to see the Illini—probably the best quintet in the history of the Big Ten—break the all-time conference scoring record as they rolled to a 86 to 44 victory over Northwestern.

Andy Phillip, the usual pace setter for Illinois, finished third in the scoring put on against Northwestern. Ken Menke came up with 22 points and was followed by Art Mathisen with 19. Phillip did all right, however, with 16 to bring his 11-game total to 215. This is 27 more than any other Big Ten cager ever has made before in 12 games.

Phillip now needs 28 points in his game tonight to break in 12 games the 15-game scoring mark of 242 set last year by Johnny Kotz of Wisconsin. Otto Graham, with 17 points, was high man for the Wildcats Saturday night.

Illinois' unbroken string of victories for the season made the team a standout for nomination as the midwest's entry in the National Collegiate Athletic association's championship playoff.

It was Michigan that gave Chicago its 38th defeat, 67 to 33, at Ann Arbor.

Wisconsin took a hold on fourth place, behind Northwestern, by turning back Purdue, 53 to 45, at Lafayette, Ind., in a game which saw Johnny Kotz lead the victors with 17 points. Capt. Al Menke of the Boilermakers was top man, however, with 20 points.

Iowa took a 43 to 41 decision from Ohio State at Iowa City to tie with Michigan at three victories and eight defeats.

Minnesota, playing outside the conference, lost to Great Lakes, 46 to 41, in overtime.

Besides the Illinois-Chicago game tonight, second-place Indiana will play at Purdue, Northwestern at Michigan, Wisconsin at Minnesota, and Ohio State at Iowa.

The season ends next Saturday night with one game—Northwestern at Ohio State.

Rockets Plan Eastern Trip

Toledo Meets LaSalle And Long Island U.

By FRITZ HOWELL

COLUMBUS (AP) - Ohio drops the curtain on its 1942-43 collegiate cage season this week with an 11-game program in which only 12 of the state's 40 squads participate. The other 28 have wrapped up the campaign.

Heaviest interest in the stretch drive centers around Toledo University's eastern invasion to meet Long Island and La Salle. The pace-setting Rockets must win both contests to stay out front on a percentage basis in the state-wide scrap.

Should the Toledoans drop one of the two games, Capital moves ahead with an .86666 mark, as compared with .86363 for the Rockets. The three thousandths of a percentage point, should the race end that way, probably would bring up another argument like the one now revolving around the Ohio conference laurels.

In the conference, the fans can't decide who should get the crown. Toledo or Capital. The Rockets won all four of their conference contests, defeating three different squads while Capital was beaten twice in a dozen starts against eight different teams.

Some feel Capital should have the title because Toledo didn't play a representative slate, while others point to Toledo's perfect record and declare the Rockets should get it.

Toledo has won 18 of 20 games. Capital finished with 13 wins in 15 starts. Buckeye squads are certain of winding up the season ahead of foreign foes, having won 57 against 50 defeats, with only five to play this week.

East Meets West In National Ice Championships

New York's hope—Dorothy Goos

Chicago's pride—Joan Yocum

East and west collide in friendly rivalry as the nation's top figure skaters compete on the ice of Madison Square Garden, New York City, in the National Championship Figure Skating meet. An eastern favorite is Miss Dorothy Goos of New York, 1942 national junior champion. A western star is Miss Joan Yocum of Chicago, midwest champ. Meet is March 6-7-8.

Threaten Buck Track Reign

Michigan and Illinois Enter Strong Teams.

CHICAGO - (INS)— Michigan and Illinois loomed today as the chief threats to Ohio State's supremacy in the 33d Western conference indoor track meet to be held Friday and Saturday nights in the University of Chicago field house.

Despite the absence of two men who accounted for 14 points last year Ohio State is regarded as a top favorite to retain the Big Ten title. Bob Wright, who broke the high and low hurdle events last year, has been declared ineligible and Ralph Hammond, captain of last year's team has been graduated.

Only two of last year's defending champions will be back for this week-end. The two returning are Bob Bederle, Wisconsin shot put star, and Bob Ufer, the Michigan quarter miler who last year clipped a tenth of a second off the previous 440 mark for a new Big Ten and American indoor record.

Dallas Dupre, who after placing second in the broad jump in last year's indoor meet went on to win the outdoor crown and place second in the low hurdles, heads the Ohio State entry. He is expected to get considerable assistance in the sprints from Dave Trepanier and two sophomores, Chester Thomas and Paul Hatfield.

The Ohio State squad, in addition, includes George Hoeflinger, in the high hurdles; John Schmidt, regarded as the best pole vaulter in the conference, Leroy Collins and Russell Owen in the 440; Lloyd Crable, jumper, and John Jones, a half miler.

* * *

Outside of Ufer, the Michigan squad carries most of its strength in the distance events, the competitors including Dave Matthews, in the half mile and mile; Bob and Russ Hume, a pair of twin sophomores whose events are the half mile, mile and two-mile runs, and Ernest Lombardi, another two miler.

Sport Roundup

NEW YORK—(AP)—Our old friend, Mr. Reliable Source passes around the tip that Southern California is cancelling its football game with Notre Dame, scheduled for next fall and that Stanford probably will follow suit. . . . Reason is transportation, and all hands likely will book service teams to fill the gaps in the schedules. . . . There'll be a lot more of that before September and our idea is that most colleges not only will depend on freshmen for players but will be playing typical freshman-team schedules. . . . The question arises: How many kids almost 18 years old will think it's worth while to go to college for one season unless some good inducements are offered?

Harry Markson, recalling the Bronx cheers after Beau Jack was given the decision over Fritzie Zivic last month: "Promotor Mike Jacobs thrilled to that swell expression of disapproval."

Disgusted By Vault Failure

Warmerdam Just Can't Understand Flop.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Although Cornelius Warmerdam, California's pole vaulting school teacher, is heading home with the James E. Sullivan award and a new national A. A. U. indoor record he is a thoroughly disgusted young man.

Warmerdam received the Sullivan trophy as the outstanding amateur athlete of 1942 yesterday and told the guests he was disappointed in not establishing a world mark of 15 feet, 8 inches, in the nationals Saturday.

"I never felt better in my life and I can't understand it. I guess I wasn't lucky," he said.

Three times after hiking the A. A. U. indoor mark to 15 feet 3½ inches he attempted to clear the world record height and twice zoomed over the cross bar with space to spare only to brush it off with his chest on the way down.

Because he is a teacher he is 2A in the draft but wouldn't be surprised if he were called up in June. "I am interested in the Hamilton navy program," he added, "and may try to be accepted in that branch." He is 27 and is 6 feet tall although weighing only 166 pounds.

Warmerdam's vaulting Saturday night all but stole the spotlight from the mile victory turned in by Frank Dixon, 3rd, New York university freshman, in 4:09.6.

Army Rejects Leo Durocher

Punctured Ear Drum Stops Dodger Manager.

NEW YORK—(INS)—Leo (Lippy) Durocher was rejected for army service today—thus solving the managerial problems for the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Durocher, who went through the stiff army physical examination much as any other civilian, thus retains his $25,000 a year post as leader of the 1941 National league champions.

No reason for the rejection was given by the army but it was learned that the talkative manager of "dem bums" had been turned down because of perforated right ear drum.

"Lippy," who soon becomes advisory baseball coach to Uncle Sam's cadets training at West Point in addition to handling the destinies of the Dodgers, said:

"I knew my ear drum was punctured but I didn't know whether it was serious enough to keep me out of the army. But the doctors produced a book and showed me where it was obligatory to turn down a man with such an ailment and nothing could be done about it. The rejection was automatic."

8-Year-Old Enters Tourney

She also participants with her mother, Mrs. Ruth Hartman, in the mother-daughter tourney. Georgette's average is an impressive one.

Cage Monarchs Retain Crowns

War Fails To Break Up Hardwood Rule.

By HAROLD CLAASSEN

NEW YORK—(AP)—War, with its heavy man-power demands, made itself felt in every basketball conference during the season now rapidly drawing to a close but not enough to disturb the reigning quintets.

Of the country's 10 major conferences, seven of them definitely will be ruled by clubs that either were first or second a year ago while only the Southern, Southwest and Pacific Coast leagues have prospects of different champions.

Already Kansas in the Big Six, Creighton in the Missouri Valley and Greeley State of the Rocky Mountain have clinched crowns they shared or held.

Illinois is only a workout away from the Big Ten flag, Dartmouth shouldn't have too great a task to win its sixth straight Eastern league title, Wyoming has replaced Colorado in the Mountain Six layout and Tennessee succeeded Kentucky in the Southeastern.

Should Rice in the Southwest and Duke in the Southern come through the list of repeating leaders would be hiked to nine of 10.

Southern California already has deposed Standard on the South Pacific Coast and Washington needs only one triumph in this week-end's rivalry with Oregon to supplant Oregon State to the north.

Rice is leading Texas, fifth placer a year ago, by a half game in the standings now and the Longhorns must defeat Texas A. & M., at Austin Wednesday to share in the title. Rice and Arkansas were co-champions last season.

* * *

Illinois' high scoring machine, which Coach Doug Mills says is "Just now reaching its peak," needs only to give Chicago its 39th straight defeat tonight to succeed itself as the Big Ten champion.

Harry Wills Starts Fast Of 30 Days

NEW YORK—(INS)—Harry Wills, ancient "black panther" of the prize ring, was embarked today on a thirty-day fast.

Wills, emphasized that his fast is an annual affair and that he has no intention of crowding Mohandas K. Gandhi off page one.

"I does it for my health," Harry explained. He started the fasts in 1911 and each year goes a month without eating but drinks plenty of water.

Wills, who packs 245 pounds on his six foot two inch frame undergoes the fast to "burn the impurities out of my body."

He believed the annual fasts prevent sickness and will enable him to remain chipper when he reaches 75 or 80. Harry is 51 now and since retiring from the ring has purchased two Harlem apartment houses and has extensive other business interests.

GODOY TAKES SOUTH AMERICAN RING TITLE

SANTIAGO, Chile—(U.P.)—Arturo Godoy, rugged Chilean heavyweight who twice tackled Joe Louis, held the South American heavyweight title today as result of a 12-round decision over Alberto Lovell of Argentina.

The Chilean won all but three rounds on points last night before a crowd of 20,000.

SPARTAN STUFF

EAST LANSING, Mich.—(AP)—Fred (Wilbur) Stone suffered a broken back and was bedridden for two years. Doctors said he would never walk again but the Chicago, Ill., youth overcame his handicap and is now one of the best backboard men on the Michigan State basketball squad. He is a member of the Army Enlisted Reserve and hopes to be called soon.

Mansfield and Lorain Keglers Deadlocked

Coshocton Bowler Cops Singles Title On Final Day of Tourney.

SUNDAY, last day of the Ohio Moose bowling tournament, saw plenty of action at Colony alleys with a new leader coming in to claim the singles championship, and two keglers tying for the title in all-events where there hadn't been a new leader since Andy Stash of Mansfield set the pace on the first week-end of the four-week pin joust.

Champions of the tournament are: five-man, Diehl Beers of Port Clinton; doubles, Carl "Jingles" Englehorn and Henry of Mansfield; singles, F. Randles, Coshocton, and all-events, Englehorn and Walter Carlson, Lorain, tied at 2035.

Englehorn and Carlson supplied the fireworks yesterday. Late in the afternoon Englehorn, Crestline resident who is a member of Mansfield lodge, and bowls in the City A league, collected 601 in singles, plus a 42 handicap for a 643 total.

And that, plus the 776 he got in doubles a week ago, and 616 in singles gave him 2035 pins for the all-events lead. They had the title all wrapped up for "Jingles" when, Walter Carlson, carrying a 135 handicap, came in with a 636 in singles to go with his 724 doubles and 675 team event for 2035.

"I'll flip him for it," Carlson immediately announced. A coin was flipped, Englehorn called "heads," and the coin dropped tails.

But they'll split first and second place money.

Carlson and J. Ryan of Lorain had rolled into second place in doubles earlier in the day. They were 41 pins back of Englehorn and Henry who took that title with 1389.

F. Randles of Coshocton chalked up 738 for the singles championship, replacing Ken Gauvey of Bryan who had led the tourney for two weeks.

Leaders since the second week of the tournament, Diehl Beers of Port Clinton walked off with team honors with 3101, but Coshocton Moose Legion fell only three pins short as they went into second place this week-end with 3098.

One record, registered on the first week-end of the tournament held up, with Frank Burton of Mansfield taking highest game with a 307, and 197 net.

Showed Way In Double Plays

Dom DiMaggio Made Only Outfield Killing.

CHICAGO—(INS)—Dom Di Maggio, speedy centerfielder for the Boston Red Sox who is now wearing a coast guard uniform, has for years enjoyed the reputation of being one of the game's greatest defensive players, and it's backed up by his feat of being the only outfielder in the American league to stage an unassisted double play during 1942.

On Aug. 2 at Detroit, Dom raced in from center field to pull down a liner off the bat of Roger Cramer and then run over fast enough to tag Jimmy Bloodworth before the Tiger infielder could return to first base.

That Di Maggio double play was one of 40 unassisted double killings made in the junior circuit during the past season. Rudy York, Detroit; Les Fleming, Cleveland; Don Kolloway, Chicago, and Mickey Vernon of Washington, shared in the unassisted double play laurels, each making three. Two were made by Kuhel, Chicago; Bloodworth, Detroit; Henrich, New York, while playing first base, and Lou Boudreau, Cleveland.

For the clubs, Chicago had the high number, eight. Detroit, Cleveland and New York had six each; Washington made seven unassisted twin killings; Philadelphia, two; Boston, five, and St. Louis, none.

The biggest day of the season for the unassisted double plays was Aug. 21, when three were made: Henrich, New York; Kuhel, Chicago, and Jim Tabor, Boston.

* * *

Rudy York of Detroit who broke the league record for most assists for a fire baseman in a season with 146, did a fine all-around job of knocking down arguments of some observers who have claimed he couldn't field. The big Tiger slugger led all the league first basemen in the first-to-short-to-first double plays, starting no fewer than eight. Buddy Hassett of New York started six, with George McQuinn of St. Louis starting five.

Young Goalie Has Ninth Shutout

(By Associated Press)

Gordie Bell, only 17, registered his ninth shutout of the present American league hockey campaign Sunday night as the Buffalo Bisons strengthened their grasp on second place by blanking the Cleveland Barons, 3 to 0. In seven other games, he has limited his foes to a single goal each.

His ninth goose egg followed the 5 to 2 victory chalked up over first place Hershey Saturday night. Other games over the week-end saw Indianapolis gain in the tight struggle for third place with a 6 to 3 decision over Cleveland and a 4 to 3 verdict over Providence. Hershey recovered from the Buffalo setback to drub Washington, 11 to 7, in an overtime contest and Pittsburgh stopped the Reds, 4 to 2.

STEEL STOCKS PUSH FORWARD ON EARLY MART

Demand For Metal Increases as Mills Work Smoothly Under Good Planning.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Steels pushed forward in today's early stock market proceedings but slightly mixed prices ruled in other categories.

Up fractions to a point at an active opening were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, J. I. Case, Baltimore & Ohio, General Motors, Kennecott and Great Northern.

In the search for trend clues attention was given the survey of the magazine "Steel" which said that demand for metal was increasing substantially and that mills were operating more smoothly because of better planning on output and character of production.

The Federal Shipbuilding and Dry Dock company launched four destroyers — the U. S. S. Thorn, U. S. S. Bullard, U. S. S. Kidd and the U. S. S. Turner — two at a time within 11 minutes.

At Camden the New York Shipbuilding corporation launched the U. S. Monterey an aircraft carrier

Be Quick To Treat Bronchitis

Chronic bronchitis may develop if your cough, chest cold, or acute bronchitis is not treated and you cannot afford to take a chance with any medicine less potent than Creomulsion which goes right to the seat of the trouble to help loosen and expel germ laden phlegm and aid nature to soothe and heal raw, tender, inflamed bronchial mucous membranes.

Creomulsion blends beechwood creosote by special process with other time tested medicines for coughs. It contains no narcotics.

No matter how many medicines you have tried, tell your druggist to sell you a bottle of Creomulsion with the understanding you must like the way it quickly allays the cough, permitting rest and sleep, or you are to have your money back. (Adv.)

RUSSIA AIDED BY U. S. PLANES

Stettinius Testifies Before Senate Group Inquiring Into Lend-Lease.

1,000 planes, many hundreds of tanks and 20,000 trucks.

"Lend-lease aid to China has not been nearly as great as the situation requires,' he admitted. "Everyone concerned with lend-lease aid programs has been struggling for more than a year with the problem of developing new routes from India into China. Now more planes are being made available and air-borne shipments into Chin are increasing."

Nevertheless, until more planes are available, U. S. supplies to China "will continue to be restricted," he added.

The "lend-lease in reverse" program has resulted in total dollar purchases by the army dwindling to less than $25,000 a month, Stettinius said, pointing out that American troops in the last war spent about $2,500,000,000 in a year and a half.

British goods transferred to the U. S. during seven months ending Dec 31, 1942, totaled 1,121,706 ship tons, 1,595,375 tons of construction materials, several hundred Spitfire planes, 2,000,000 blankets, 2,000,000 sets of underwear, 4,000,000 pairs of wool stocks and new hospitals with a bed capacity of 90,000.

Despite their own shortage of food, he said, the British have made available to the United States more than 1,500,000 pounds of flour, 30,000 000 pounds of butter; over 25,000.000 pounds of fruits and vegetables and more than 55.000,000 pounds of sugar.

New Zealand's contributions of food have resulted in that country suffering from scarcities, he said

Rep. Edith Nourse Rogers, R., Mass., charged that the "administration dominated" house foreign affairs committee jeopardized passage of the bill to extend the lend-lease program another year by failing to fully protect American rights in foreign bases.

Mrs. Rogers, ranking Republican member of the committee, said the committee was denied the full story concerning lend-lease agreements and operations, even during executive sessions, and that he request for further hearings was refused.

"Certain witnesses I requested —specifically board of economic welfare officials—did not testify," she said "The committee was only vaguely informed on the balance between lend-lease and reverse lend-lease."

Pilot Isn't Sure His 'Deal' With Arab's So Good

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—The Arabs in North Africa, says Lt. Grenville (Granny) Ansdell, are good for a lot of laughs, but he's not so sure who's going to have the last laugh about a month from now on.

Lansdell, former U. S. C. football star, tells a sports writer friend in a letter how the pilot of a B-17 bomber negotiated with an Arab for six eggs a day over a period of two months.

"He told the Arab he will give him the bomber at the end of that time," wrote Lansdell, "and the Arab really thinks he's got a bargain coming about a month from now on. He brings all his friends down to admire the bomber.

"When the ship came back from a raid recently with a flak' hole in it the Arab was mad as the devil.

"The last time I saw the pilot he looked a little perturbed, and went around muttering: 'I'm not so sure I want to be here a month from now.' Those Arabs have guns that look about seven feet long."

House Committee Studies New Tax Withholding Plan.

WASHINGTON (AP)—A withholding device for deducting income taxes at a 19 or 20 per cent rate from pay checks may come to a vote today in the house ways and means subcommittee considering pay-as-you-go methods of collection.

The committee temporarily dropped its discussion of plans for cancelling part or all of a year's taxes in bringing the collections up-to-date.

Under the plan now under consideration, the taxpayer would pay his 1942 levies in quarterly payments beginning March 15, as before On July 1, however, he will begin paying out of each pay check on his 1943 levies.

NAZIS ADVANCE NORTHWARD IN TUNISIA DRIVE

Register Three-Mile Gain In Face of Heavy Losses To Men and Equipment.

enemy continued his attacks generally on a reduced scale.

"Northeast of Beja, however, attacks on our positions continued all day, the enemy throwing in tanks and infantry in an effort to pierce our positions.

Far to the southeast, where the British Eighth army stands before the Mareth line, the communique said only that patrols were in contact with the enemy.

Allied aviation continued to attack heavily both along the Tunisian battlelines and against Axis bases.

Flying Fortresses bombed Cagliari, in Sardinia, and the war bulletin said hits were observed on ships, docks, warehouses and railroad yards.

From Allied operations 12 aircraft were announced to be missing. Eight enemy fighters were destroyed.

The repulse of Axis attacks in the north followed the same pattern of the picture painted by yesterday's communique.

"Allied forces were successful in holding the enemy in every instance," that war bulletin said.

"In the course of the fighting heavy casualties in men and materials were inflicted on the enemy."

RAF Hurricanes and Spitfires struck Col. Gen. Jurgen Von Arnim's forces along a 65-mile front from the sea near Bizerte, to the Djebel Mansour range below Bou Arada.

The air attacks and firm ground resistance of British and American forces appeared to have checked Von Arnim's attempt to divert Allied strength from the pursuit of Marshal Erwin Rommel's forces around Kasserine, where the communique said "the enemy withdrawal continues."

A British squadron leader describing the air attacks said "there must be bloody chaos over there," and returning pilots reported roads blocked with wrecked Axis transport vehicles.

Axis attacks in the north began around Cape Serrat, on the coast 35 miles southwest of Bizerte, where Italian troops attempted to push along the coastal road but were thrown back by French troops.

A communique said the British Eighth army under Gen. Sir Bernard L. Montgomery, pursuing Rommel from the south as the First army bore down from the north, had made contact with the enemy "south of Mareth," lower anchor of Rommel's position down by the Tripolitanian border," but added that "there was little enemy activity, apart from intermittent artillery fire."

Air activity continued heavy in this sector, however, with an Allied bomber raid on the Axis supply port of Gabes and attacks on landing fields by fighter bombers. Eleven Axis planes were destroyed at a cost of two Allied planes.

On the Ousseltia plain, some 40 miles west of the Axis-held port of Sousse, the communique reported "several sharp engagements, all to our advantage."

SEEKS HERO

'Children's Friend' Wants Boy Who Saved Life.

MARION — (INS) — Addison Bain, self-styled "the children's friend," and who has gained a state-wide reputation for his work with children, has a handsome bronze medal which he hopes to present a former Columbus boy who rescued an eight-year-old youngster from a watery grave, if he can find him.

The young hero, Robert Dear, was 14 years old when he plunged into the Scioto river at Columbus, grabbed Patrick Simon, eight, who had fallen into the stream and towed him to safety on June 19, 1941.

Bain, when he heard of the heroic act, decided the deed deserved a medal. He wrote to Columbus but found the Dear family had moved to some spot near Marion. Since that time Bain has been searching for the boy unavailingly. He still has the medal and hopes his search will some day be rewarded and he will be given the opportunity to present it.

Von Brauchitsch 'Disappears' On Tour of Southern Germany.

LONDON—(INS)—Field Marshal Walther Von Brauchitsch, once commander-in-chief of the German armies, was missing today, apparently carried off by the Gestapo, the Moscow radio reported.

hours later and recorded by the Soviet monitor in London, said that in the Kramatorsk area, about 60 miles east of Lozovaya, Russian forces "were engaged in repelling serious counterattacks by enemy tanks and mobile infantry."

The Germans left 500 dead on the field of battle in one sector, and 30 tanks were smashed, the Russians said.

Red army troops threw back a counterattack launched by the Germans southwest of Voroshilovgrad and, pursuing the retreating Nazis, captured another populated place and took about 100 prisoners, the Soviet mid-day communique said.

The bulletin announced the Germans had been driven from more communities west of Kharkov and Kursk.

Lozovaya, recaptured by the Russians Feb. 11, is about 75 miles south of Kharkov and is an important railway junction. Kramatorsk, 110 miles southeast of Kharkov, also is a railroad town.

Rumanians Fall Back To Bessarabia Line

LONDON — (INS) — Marshal Ion Antonescu, premier of Rumania, has ordered his troops to fall back gradually to the Bessarabian frontier, withdrawing their support from Axis legions in Russia, the Daily Express said today.

The newspaper, in an Istanbul dispatch, quoted a secret order of the day issued on Jan. 10 after Antonescu had conferred with Adolf Hitler.

Hitler, the paper reported, threatened that Rumania would have to defend herself alone if Russian troops broke through.

The entire Rumanian general staff was said to be enraged because their troops were forced to remain to be slaughtered at Stalingrad.

Rumanian airmen were thrown into suicide battles with Russian pilots using American planes 100 miles an hour faster than Rumanian aircraft, the satellite nation's military leaders were reported to have charged.

AXIS SOLDIERS OBEY BLINDLY

Former Austrian Officer Says They Are Tough But Need Prodding.

FORT BENNING, Ga.—(INS)—A former Australian officer, trained since the age of five for a military career, Officer Candidate Harry R. Graham of Fort Benning, warns against underrating the German or Japanese soldier.

Graham, now an American citizen, is the son of an English officer and an Austrian girl who lived in Vienna after World War I. In April 1938 when Hitler declared "anchluss" with Austria, he demanded students of the Klosterneuburger Officier Schule, in which Graham was enrolled, to swear allegiance to Germany.

Refusing, Graham was thrown into a concentration camp. He finally managed to obtain his release and then with his mother and step-father went to England. Later they came to the United States.

American soldiers are better equipped, better able to think for themselves, and have a higher morale generally than the soldiers of Germany or Japan, he says.

And the officer candidate speaks from experience. As a student, he frequently went on military observation missions. As a member of such missions, he visited Japan, China, Russia, Germany, Manchukuo, Italy, France, Spain and England.

"German soldiers, probably are more highly trained, because they have been at it for many years—but they are taught blind obedience and cannot act when their leaders are gone.

Such emphasis on blind obedience of rank and file is a deterring factor in the time of dire stress. An army so trained is all right when "victorious but when once forced to the wall and faced with mounting reverses, it will collapse like a bursting balloon, Graham concluded.

5 HURT IN FUR STORE BLAZE

Fire Fighters Injured When Blast Shatters Windows; Loss $10,000.

dows by the explosion, were gathered up by a police detail working under Captain Paul Whipp and Lieutenant Eugene Hartnett. Fire lines were established at Weldon avenue and westward on Park avenue but many early-morning autoists ignored the barricades and confusion resulted when police reversed the traffic.

Klein announced today noon that he will maintain headquarters at 136 Park avenue west, a temporary site near the fire scene, for the accommodation of patrons.

"Everything was lost, and I am awaiting conferences with insurance company representatives," Klein said. He was unable to offer any cause for the fire or to give an estimate of the loss.

Although firemen kept the blaze from spreading, smoke got into the theater and into the second floor quarters of Richland, Inc., which was forced off the air when damage to power lines prevented broadcasting.

When flames were forced by the blast through a ventilator into the Ohio theater basement fire wall, no combustible material was in the ushers' room to be ignited, theater officials told Chief Seeburger.

Grattan Johnson, Warner Brothers' company manager here, in charge of the Ohio, arrived at the fire scene at 4 a. m. and remained during the four-hour battle. He arranged for installation of fans and blowers to clear the vast theater auditorium of smoke and fire odors. Others of the theater staff were on hand early.

Central fire station received many calls from persons having furs in storage to inquire the fate of their property. It was Lost." Several racks of apparel burned rapidly, firemen said, and none was able to enter the store which was a blazing inferno by the time the fire apparatus arrived.

Four hose lines were laid by the two fire companies and no difficulty was reported from frozen hydrant valves, Chief Seeburger said. Flooding of the basement prevented, he said, a thorough inspection of the ruins in an effort to determine the cause of the fire. It could not be learned whether or not any employes had been in the store yesterday or last night.

The heating system is in the rear of a basement firewall, Seeburger said, and this wall checked a probably disastrous spread of flames.

Today Captain Zimmerman recalled that 10 years ago last month he aided in fighting the historic Madison theater fire which probably constitutes Mansfield's major fire catastrophe.

"I sure saw visions of that blaze when I got to this one next to the Ohio theater," Zimmerman said today.

gress of the campaign will be made known daily.

A proclamation by Mayor W. J. Locke requests complete co-operation of the city.

Red Cross workers were encouraged this morning with indications pointing toward increasing co-operation of some of the city's and county's biggest firms. Employes of two of them listed names, addresses and phone members of a great number who were willing and anxious to co-operate in the blood donor service of the chapter as well.

Stressing that their health was in an excellent state, 21 members of the U. S. navy staff at the Westinghouse plant and 23 employes of the American Steel and Abrasive company in Galion said their employer's would permit them to visit the unit in a body at any date the chapter might name.

Warns Taxi Firms To Observe Laws, Repair Equipment

Equipment of Mansfield's taxicab companies will be rigidly inspected during the next two weeks and complete adherence to the city's regulatory ordinance demanded, Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals announced today.

Taxicabs found in imperfect mechanical condition will be ordered off the streets, Boals intimated, implying that some equipment being operated constitutes a definite traffic hazard.

"In an effort to keep accidents at a minimum" Boals' letter to cab owners says, "council passed an ordinance requiring speed governors on all cabs, these to be set so that no cab could exceed 45 miles an hour up or down hills. Ten miles per hour over the city speed law of 35 miles was allowed so that some of these governors have been set at 45 miles on a level course."

Boals advised owners that the traffic department has no desire to make arrests under the ordinance without first giving every company ample warning to check their cars. "Members of the traffic department will very soon, and periodically thereafter, check governors on all cars, and also test brakes, windshields, lights and inspect for other defects," the warning says.

"Wishing to get the maximum service from all public conveyances and at the same time accomplishing this with the utmost safety, the traffic department sincerely solicits your co-operation" Boals wrote the operators.

Boals complimented one concern, which recently put a fleet of new cabs in operation, for having set all governors at 32 miles an hour, well below the city speed limit and the prescribed victory speed.

M'ARTHUR SAYS JAPS MASS FOR MAJOR ATTACK

Warns Patrols Find All Kinds of Enemy Forces Are Being Gathered Off Australia.

New Guinea were declared to have driven the Japanese back about 30 miles from Wau, site of an Allied airfield in northeastern New Guinea.

The Japanese still hold numerous bases in the northwestern Solomons, New Guinea, New Britain and the Dutch East Indies to the northwest of Australia.

In other far Pacific areas, American airmen were busy striking blows in China and Burma. The American air force under Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault renewed its offensive against the Japanese along the Burma road, after a month's lay-off due to bad weather, and spilled tons of bombs on warehouses and barracks at Mangshih, 30 miles west of the Salween river.

Other American fliers from India were reported in a communique to have damaged, and probably sunk, a 7,000-ton merchant ship south of Rangoon, big Burma port, and to have spread devastation among warehouses and ammunition dumps at Waingma, a Japanese base in northern Burma used for the Yunnan drive.

An Indian coastal patrol, feeling out Japanese defenses 60 miles southeast of Akyab on the Burma coast, clashed with armed enemy launches and killed 50 Japanese.

The RAF also attacked objectives in Burma, particularly at Akyab, and a British communique announced that guerrillas operating in northern Burma had been so successful in ambushing Japanese patrols that the Japanese had been forced to undertake a major expedition in that area in an effort to mop them up.

Our Chances Brighter, Chennault Says

WITH AMERICAN FORCES IN CHINA, Feb. 28—(Delayed)——(UP)—Brig. Gen. Claire Chennault said today the Allies can defeat Japan in a comparatively short time when they turn their whole effort into the Pacific, and "there is an outside chance the job can be finished this year."

The commander of the United States forces in China emphasized his conviction that victory in the Pacific is nearing, but said it depended on "how soon the United Nations put the necessary stuff into China."

Looking to the possibility of eliminating Japan in 1943 if an all-out effort is made, Chennault said:

"I think there are some men in a high position who already realize this."

Chennault said the prospects "are definitely brighter" for carrying the war to Japan.

cessed foods this month, cutting consumers about 50 per cent in their normal usage of canned goods.

The government has appealed to consumers to substitute fresh vegetables, eggs, cheese and other unrationed commodities for rationed products whenever possible, pointing out that price ceilings have been established on major fresh vegetables in order to make these items more readily available to the housewife.

Meanwhile, ration board officials handled the heaviest mail in recent weeks this morning. Besides a big stack of applications for supplementary gasoline rations, there were two new OPA notices concerning deadline dates.

The registration period for industrial users opened today to close March 10, the announcement stated, while that of institutional users which also opened today will close March 15. Industrial and institutional consumers were required to file inventories of their supplies on hand by Feb. 28.

Applications are available at the ration board, headquarters for the industrial and institutional registration.

In the gasoline business, ration officials said it appears that some customers will be found wanting. Although applications will be handled just as rapidly as possible, owing to the great number of requests coming in, it will be virtually impossible to fill all of them before some may have expired, they said.

Gasoline panel members, paid employes and a few volunteer employes worked all day yesterday, Chairman C. C. Beelman said, in getting caught up on last week's applications.

RAF Keeps Up Attack, Seen as Effort to Soften German Lines For Invasion.

Halifax, Lancaster and Stirling bombers participated.

It probably was the heaviest of 44 RAF raids on the port, which also has been raided in daylight by American Flying Fortresses and Liberators.

Last night's attacks carried the around-the-clock Allied aerial offensive against Europe into the fourth night and wound up the heaviest month of Allied raids since the start of the war.

British and American planes based in Britain made 43 attacks on Germany and occupied territory during February at a total cost of 176 aircraft, of which 20 belonged to the 8th U. S. air force.

Simultaneously with the stepped-up aerial offensive—now nearing the 80th hour of around-the-clock attacks—came predictions that large-scale Commando raids on the German-occupied Atlantic coast are imminent as another step in preparing for an all-out invasion.

Allied observers cautioned, however, that the softening-up process probably would take weeks and perhaps months rather than days to complete.

The sustained offensive, begun Thursday night with the RAF's shattering attack on Nurnberg, southern Germany industrial center, was carried forward with an American daylight raid on Wilhelmshaven Friday, an RAF attack on Cologne Friday night, an American raid Saturday on Brest, German U-boat base on the French Atlantic coast; a British attack the same day on Dunkirk, another occupied French port; an RAF assault on western Germany Saturday night, and RAF attacks Sunday on the German airfield at Maupertus, near Cherbourg, France, and factories at Hengelo, Holland, and Liege, Belgium.

Speculation that Allied preparations for an invasion of Europe were under way was fed by radio broadcasts by two of Britain's top army officials yesterday.

Lieut. Gen. Bernard C. T. Paget, commander of Britain's home forces, said the troops under his command "sincerely hope that we shall not have much longer to wait for the stimulus of battle."

War Secretary Sir James Grigg, who introduced Paget and other British army chieftains in the broadcast, said Britain now was "in sight of being able to say that the army is properly trained and adequately furnished."

LOANS TO PAY INCOME TAXES

A message to the person who has been unable to save sufficient money to pay his income tax instalment on March 15.

INCOME TAXES should be paid out of savings or current income, if possible. But if you have been unable to save up enough to pay your tax and you expect to borrow now and repay from income, investigate Household's plan.

You can keep down the cost of your loan by borrowing no more than you need to pay the first quarterly instalment of your tax due March 15, and by repaying as soon as possible. If you already have part of your tax money, you should borrow just enough to complete your instalment. If you repay your loan in three monthly payments, you will have your loan paid when your second tax instalment becomes due June 15.

Check these costs for tax loans

Total Tax For Year	Quarterly Tax Instalment You Borrow	Monthly Loan Payment You Make	Total Cost For Quarter	Total Cost For Year
$ 80	$ 20	$ 7.00	$ 1.00	$ 4.00

1600	400	138.69	16.07	64.28
2000	500	172.68	18.04	72.16

The columns above show what it will cost you to borrow for your quarterly instalment if you repay in three monthly payments—and also the cost of borrowing all four quarterly tax instalments as they come due. You may have some other plan for budgeting your taxes over this year that can best be worked out by one of our other loan plans given in the table below. Loan payments given include principal and interest at the rate of 2½% per month on loan balances of $100 or less, 2% per month on that part of a balance in excess of $100 but not exceeding $300, and 1½% per month on any remainder.

3 ways to borrow

Getting a loan at Household is a quick, private transaction. We require no endorsers, or guarantors. It is never necessary to ask friends or fellow-workers to sign the loan papers with you. We make three kinds of loans. 1: Salary loans—for the convenience of folks who have no car or furniture on which to borrow. 2: Auto loans. 3: Furniture loans. Hundreds of families use this plan. We will make your loan the way which best fits your own situation. If you need extra cash to pay your income tax, or for any other purpose, write, phone or visit us.

TO LIVE WITH LOVE +++

CHAPTER IV

She saw the library of the big frame house in which Bill's mother and father had raised three sons, the same library where they had always unwrapped their Christmas gifts, transformed one spring day into a solemn conference room with the sonorous voice of the family attorney reading a last will and testament. No one could speak when he had finished because no one could believe that the thrifty, self-made business man who never took a holiday and who saw his children struggling and shabby had so much money.

She could not skip a page of the past . . . She and Bill had built a country house and joined the country club. There were new names and new faces as she became aware that Bill was becoming a person of importance in the community and that persons of importance were coming to their home. That had been her orderly life as wife and friend and hostess. In her inner life she felt sometimes as though the gods had been too generous. And nothing between her and Bill had altered. His glance in her direction in a roomful of people, his smile, still a little shy at times, the touch of his hands, the brush of his shoulder, enclosed them in a warm intimacy they alone understood.

She wished that Clive would come back. The pages were becoming few, the last pages of the last year written with the essence of her, written with pain and with violence. She would never know everything. She knew only that what had gone before had been lived with truth and with love and with faith.

No suspicion had spoken in her ear. She had always packed Bill's bag for a business trip to New York and driven him to the station in town. She had always been at the station when he returned. His business life in later years being too complicated for her (in the first years she had worked with him at night) she usually asked, "Good trip?" and he invariably would say, "Oh, fine. How's everything here?"

But one night in November he became a person she did not know.

Bill and Carol had dined at home and gone to the living room for coffee; someone had telephoned and the radio played softly. She had heard the normal sounds of their everyday life in the familiar room where he sat in his favorite chair, the polished floor beneath it scratched by his large, heavy shoes.

Then he had looked across the room and said, "Carol, there's something I've got to tell you. . . . I want you to give me a divorce . . ." She had to listen, to hear it, to look at him walking around the room, his face tormented, his eyes strange and bewildered and full of pain. He had met a girl in New York . . . Evelyn Thayne . . . He was sorry . . . He would give anything to spare her (Carol) this hurt and humiliation.

She wondered later whether Bill had not suffered more than she that night. But she knew when she tried to reason with him that it was futile, that she didn't understand him and couldn't reach him. He talked about money and the house, and when her head felt as though it would burst, she had groped her way, as one blind, out of the room. He had left the house that night . . . But the next he had come back for her answer.

Mentally she tore out pages because in the end she had acquiesced. There was nothing else to do. Words did not reach him. Nothing reached him. He looked terrible, saying, "I'm sorry, Carol. I'd give anything in the world not to hurt you like this." He looked helpless and bewildered until once, determined to fight, she had cried out and he had looked at her as though he hated her. All this while inanimate things remained lovingly in places and Rosie cooked in the kitchen.

Soon everyone knew. Like magic the news had flown and she had seen it in the eyes of the grocer boy and the laundryman. It was introduced over bridge tables, manicurists' tables, the country club bar and office desks. "Have you heard about Carol and Bill Sturtevant? Isn't it too bad? I thought they were so happy. They say . . ." Their marriage had been held up to the world for ridicule, for scorn, for pity great and small.

* * *

By the springy walk Carol knew that the tall figure in the flapping coat was Clive. When he reached her, he held out his hand to help her up and said, "We're going to dance, my sweet. This is your last night out." He spoke cheerfully, the laziness in his voice incompatible with the springy walk and alert eyes.

"And yours."

"But this is more of an adventure to you than it is to me."

In the salon Mr. Weger sat at the table alone. A modern Midas, he could not manage even a wan smile for her. For him the cruise was over. For others too, dancing in a tired fashion to tired music and in frocks that had been worn too many times and in collars that had wilted, the cruise was over. To Carol they were human at least, like children just before the end of a party when all the ice cream and cake had been devoured.

There was no sound of life on the ship when Clive followed her down the long passageway to her cabin. The familiar sounds of voices and the tinkle of glasses and laughter were gone.

After she put her key in her door Carol turned to him. Quickly, so quickly that it happened before she could prevent it, he kissed her passionately.

"You've lived with love," he said. "Do you think now that you can live without it?"

She did not answer. Her face burning, she entered the cabin, not thinking of him but of what he had said.

When Carol stepped from the gangplank, wearing again the beaver jacket over the green tailored suit and the boyish brown felt hat, she had a telegram in her hand from Freda Kelly who asked that she let her know when she was arriving in Clinton so that she, Freda, could meet her. Dear loyal, blunt, impulsive Freda who did not want her to go home alone.

Now people were leaving the ship and the same stewards who had been frantic to get the baggage on board were now equally frantic to get it off. Again the scene was mad and merry, the voices loud and high-pitched, the welcoming throng swelling momentarily, their high spirits dampened only by the slow and strict formality of the law.

While the inspector was going through Carol's baggage, she saw Mr. Weger, beaming happily again, his old, short legs showing an energy that surely must not feel. He was coming toward her. He held out his hand.

"Well, well, I suppose this is good-bye, Carol. All good things come to an end, eh? I wish I'd seen more of you. Now be a good girl."

"I'll try."

"My daughter's meeting me. I know what she'll say the minute she sees me. 'Daddy, I want something.' . . . Oh, you girls, you're all alike!"

Carol smiled, thinking, "He's pathetic and lovable. He wants so much for a girl to love him for himself and not for his money."

"I won't say good-bye," Mr. Weger said a little coyly. "Who knows? I might be dropping down to Clinton one of these days and I'll . . . I'll look you up." He said later as though he were challenging her.

"Please do."

"Well, then, be a good girl and don't do anything I wouldn't do."

Engrossed in the inspection of her baggage and finding her particular inspector quite human, Carol failed to notice until the inspection was over that Clive Holdridge was standing beside her, again the amused, sardonic spectator.

"All through?" he asked. His eyes were laughing at her, calling her to remembrance, and she wondered whether he wished her to remember his kiss or his parting words of last night—or both. "You haven't had any lunch. I looked in the dining-room and you weren't at your usual place. I haven't had any either. Therefore your having dinner with me . . . We'll check our baggage . . ." And when she hesitated, he chuckled, "I'm not asking you, darling, I'm telling you. I'll see about the baggage."

He departed quickly and her eyes followed the lone, striking figure in gray tweeds easily identified in the shifting crowds. Being a man of charm and action, he made your pulse jump, she thought. But how unreal it was to be waiting for Clive, a stranger, and not waiting for Bill . . . She had always waited for Bill. She always knew what to say to Bill and what to ask and she had always been happy, seeing him come to her. She belonged to him.

Presently Clive came back.

Early twilight colors streaked the March sky and drew her attention away from the ugliness of dirty snow. She stopped still, meeting an impact—the full realization that she had returned to a world where Bill was married to someone else. Then someone's hand, Clive's hand, took her arm firmly and she was being led gently but firmly to a taxi. She thought then, "I must get over the feeling that I want to hide as though I've done something terrible. What have I done?"

Clive took Carol to a small place noted more for its food than for its entertainment. They ordered cocktails and lighted cigarets.

Leaning forward, he asked, "Why didn't you have a child, Carol?"

She looked up quickly. "We'd planned to this year . . . but must we talk about that?"

"Yes, of course, we must. We must talk about you. I want to talk about you—while I'm looking at you. No one has even told you the things about yourself that I'm going to tell you. Not your husband; and you're one of those pure women who has never known any other man. Do you have to get a job to support yourself?"

"No. He made a substantial settlement upon me and I get alimony besides. I've thought of getting a job, but I'm not trained to do anything. All my training has been to be a wife. Then, to, I'd be taking the place of a girl who really needed a job." She lowered her eyes to the thin glasses the waiter had just set before her and smiled. "I have money and time. It isn't often that one has both."

"I think you're wonderful. I think you're worth all the trouble and inconvenience you're going to put me to." He smiled and there was a surprising boyishness in that smile. "This is 1940, Carol, and big things are happening in the world. How big only God knows.

"The last time you were in love you were seven years younger, and when you were seven years younger there was plenty of time. Time doesn't go fast when you're in your teens. It doesn't go fast enough. There was time then for all the nice, polite, cautious preliminaries of love. It's different now. It's different now because of the time factor and also because you're not a girl; you're a woman. That's why we can't have all the nice, polite, cautious preliminaries." He chuckled. "You look very charming when you look startled."

"You're a startling person, Clive. I've never met anyone like you before."

"How could you? You've never met a man who pretended to know anything about women. Haven't you heard men say, 'Women? I give up!' Hoy many husbands know their wives, know that they are frustrated and unhappy and that they stay married only because they can't see anything better for themselves? You see, I do know your country club woman."

"I was neither frustrated nor unhappy and I wouldn't have traded my life for any other. I failed. Somewhere I failed."

"Sometimes people fail for being too perfect."

Carol smiled. "At least, you haven't said, 'You're young and your life is before you. You can start all over again'."

BANDS SCARCE

Britishers Pay Big Prices For Orchestras.

LONDON —(AP)— "Too old at forty" is written large over the entrance to most of Britain's dance bands. Youth is in demand, report dance circles, because people who listen and dance to the music are generally allergic to grey-haired orchestras.

As a result, many young London dance band players, earning an average of $28 weekly before the war, are now getting up to $250 for a twenty-four-hour week.

"They are not all experienced players," said a musicians' union official, "but they are young and good-looking. Some have been invalided out of the forces, others are medically unfit to serve."

MINERS SUPPORT MEN AT FRONT

LONDON—(AP)—Scottish miners, as a special tribute to the achievements of the Fifty-first Highland division in Egypt and Libya, have hewed out 30,000 extra tons of coal, in addition to working their regular shifts.

Terming the performance a "magnificent contribution in the fight against Fascism," a national executive of the Scottish Mine Workers union put forth the hope that new simlar efforts would be made.

DON'T PLANT VICTORY VEGETABLES NEAR LARGE TREES—THE TREE ROOTS WILL DEPRIVE THEM OF NEEDED MOISTURE AND NOURISHMENT
TREE FOLIAGE KEEPS NEEDED SUNLIGHT FROM VEGETABLE PLANTS

Choosing the Site for the Victory Garden.

By DEAN HALLIDAY

(Released by Central Press Ass'n.)

Never before has it been so important for every home gardener who has sufficient open, sunny space and fertile soil to have a Victory vegetable garden. America this year needs millions of Victory gardens. It must have at least six million farm gardens and 12 million city, town and suburban gardens. Vegetables and fruits from these gardens will make a real contribution to the total civilian food supply, especially of those vital elements — the vitamins and minerals needed for sustained well-being.

The United States Department of Agriculture considers that good food habits require eating from four to seven servings of vegetables daily. Your Victory garden will make it possible for you and your family to meet these nutrition requirements despite wartime shortages.

Choosing the site for a Victory garden is of utmost importance, whether you live in the city, town or suburbs. The goal for Victory gardeners should be a garden 30 by 100 feet, if home grounds or backyard permits. The site selected should get sun all day, should not have standing water even after heavy rains, and the soil, for ideal gardening, should be rich loam that is easily worked.

The backyard Victory gardener must take care not to lay out the vegetable garden partly under, or too near large trees. Vegetable plants thus placed will not develop properly, since the tree roots, illustrated in the accompanying Garden-Graph, deprive the soil of food and moisture.

NO. 49: DEDUCTION FOR TRAVELING EXPENSES

To obtain a deduction for traveling expenses, which form an important item in the returns of many taxpayers, certain regulations must be observed. The taxpayer is required to attach to his return a statement showing the nature of business in which engaged, number of days away from home during the taxable year on account of business, total amount of expenses incidental to meals and lodging, and total amount of "other expenses" incident to travel and claimed as a deduction. Among the "other expenses" are tips, provided they are reasonable in amount.

Traveling expenses are deductible only when the trip is on business. They are limited to such expenses as are reasonable and necessary in the conduct of the business and directly attributable to it.

Traveling expenses incurred in connection with a journey to another city to accept or seek employment are not deductible. Suburbanites who commute daily from their homes to their place of business are not permitted to deduct the cost of transportation, it being a personal expense.

Claims for deduction for traveling expenses must be substantiated when required by the commissioner of internal revenue, showing in detail the amount and nature of the expense incurred.

Our policy is to give the same conscientious attention to every family we serve.

We do this at a cost which you can afford no matter what your requirements may be.

"I believe a man should be proud of the city in which he lives and that he should so live that his city will be proud that he lives in it."—Abraham Lincoln.

Red Cross Responds To Call of War

THE RED CROSS fund-raising campaign which started this morning in Mansfield and Richland county represents this community's willing participation in a nation-wide drive to raise $125,000,000 to carry on the greatly expanded work of the Red Cross in this year of war.

The share which the people of this city and county is to have in contributing toward the total amount is $59,000, which combines the usual membership roll call with solicitation for an added contribution needed to finance wartime activities. It is because of vastly increased tasks of mercy and relief that the "Give double" plea is being made this year, and public realization of the global requirements of Red Cross war work is all that is needed to induce liberal giving.

The record of Mansfield and Richland county residents in supporting peace-time activities of the Red Cross justifies a feeling of assurance that there will be a general and prompt response to the present appeal for larger contributions.

Hundreds of volunteer solicitors will give time and effort to the campaign, in addition to making personal contributions, and it is hoped that their work can be completed within two weeks.

Customary services of the Red Cross will be maintained, even under pressure of war demands, and one-third of the total amount contributed will be retained by the local chapter to meet needs in city and county, while call can be made on the national organization in the event of a major disaster.

Never in its history has the Red Cross had greater opportunities for humanitarian service than now—nor greater need for money with which to spread its work of mercy throughout the world. The appeal to "Give double" is one that many will gladly heed.

Plenty of Clothing for Everybody

THERE will be no need for rationing of wearing apparel in the United States this year—unless people force it upon themselves by excessive buying.

That assurance has been given by Prentiss M. Brown, director of OPA, and is being reiterated by all who know of the extent of wool supply and other necessary materials.

But the panicky overbuying, of which evidence has been seen for the past several weeks, CAN make rationing necessary if continued.

The purpose of rationing is to secure fair distribution of commodities, and the mere fact that there is no present nor prospective shortage of men's, women's and children's clothing does not preclude the possibility of ten per cent of the people gobbling up the entire supply if each of that self-centered ten per cent buys ten times as much as needed.

Rationing means sharing. It does not mean grabbing. If, as Pope said: "The proper study of mankind is man," the present situation, in the matter of individual response to war emergencies, offers excellent opportunity for study.

P. S. It may be assumed that Pope intended to include women in his suggested field of "proper study."

Steelworkers Union Makes Report

THE United Steelworkers of America union has won wide approval for the completeness of its recent financial statement.

It compares most favorably with the detailed accounts issued by the Typographical union and the International Ladies' Garment Workers, which for many years have accounted for every cent collected from members.

The steel workers' report reveals a membership of 725,625, making it second in size only to the United Mine Workers. Its assets are $1,774,900. The union has a cash position which any corporation would envy, with $1,415,000 in the bank.

The report contains information which some unions guard jealously. For example, in the seven-month period ended Nov. 30, 1942, initiation fees amounted to $394,000, of which $142,280 was returned to the 1,800 locals. Dues totaled $3,150,000, of which $804,000 was returned to the locals. Details of the national expenditures are set forth.

In sharp contrast to the affairs of some unions, it cannot be said of the steelworkers that the members do not know what becomes of their money. The union's frankness makes it stronger both internally and in public opinion.

Russia Helped By Rivers

THE RUSSIAN campaign runs in terms of rivers. At Stalingrad it was the Volga. Russia's Mississippi, which, emptying into the Caspian Sea, is the gateway to Central Asia. Rostov is at the mouth of the Don river, near its outlet—the Sea of Azov, which is a small body of water connecting with the Black Sea. Moscow and Leningrad are both on rivers.

Her rivers have been the making of Russia. So many are they, and so near together, that it is possible by short portages to go from almost any ocean to almost any other, from the Arctic to the Black Sea, and from the Baltic to the Caspian. Canals are replacing these portages. From Moscow boats can already go to the Caspian and Black Seas, the Arctic ocean and the Baltic.

Volga-borne traffic saved Stalingrad. As the Russians drive the Germans westward, their networks of rivers and canals will be increasingly freed and the burden on their railroads lifted.

Americans have made comparatively little use of their waterways. While the Great Lakes have carried their share of freight, the rivers and canals have been neglected. With the railroads burdened to their limit, and trucking handicapped by shortage of tires and gasoline, water transport in this country may see better days.

As Robert Quillen puts it: "If we'll all forget our self-serving greed, and try as hard as the Russians, we'd have the stuff to crush the Japs."

There's another rumor that Madame Perkins will resign. You may remember, she's still drawing a salary as secretary of labor.

First requirement in writing a letter to your congressman telling him how to vote, is to make sure that you know his name.

India Questions British Sincerity In Promising Full Independence

(Editor's Note: Can Indians and Moslems work together in government? DeWitt Mackenzie, News-Journal war analyst, discusses this in tomorrow's article. The following is the sixth in a series of ten articles.)

By DEWITT MACKENZIE

DOES England really desire a settlement of the Indian crisis or is she playing the factions against each other in the hope of postponing the granting of independence and thereby retaining her hold on this vast subcontinent?

Inevitably we come up against this question even though we accept the widely held belief that the British-Indian controversy is susceptible of settlement if the government would take the initiative. It's a matter of constant comment among both Indians and neutral observers. As a matter of fact, one generally hears it in the form of a flat accusation rather than a query.

Well, what's the answer? India maintains British Premier Churchill himself gave the reply in a speech at the London Lord Mayor's banquet last November when he declared:

"I have not become the king's first minister in order to preside over liquidation of the British empire."

That was a "natural" from the Indian standpoint, and it has become one of the most quoted statements in current history. But when you make it apply specifically to India you are trying to read Churchill's mind, for he didn't mention India at all. It's circumstantial evidence.

Now of course, you can hang a man on circumstantial evidence, and the Indians produce a lot of it to substantiate their claim that England has been pursuing a policy of "divide and rule." As a matter of fact, I've had a government official tell me that this was the policy followed.

Still, my investigations in India convinced me we shall come closer to the truth by further examination. Here it's important to note we are not concerned with whether the government pursued a "divide and rule" policy in years past, but what its present policy is. I've examined a lot of well informed witnesses in the government camp and the position was this when I left India just before Mahatma Gandhi began his hunger strike:

The government of India had no intention whatever of reopening the question of Indian independence during the war. The grounds given for this stand included these:

1. The various Indian political factions were so embroiled among themselves that there was no responsible body to which power could be entrusted.

2. The country was being plagued by destruction of property and bloodshed, which the government attributed to the influence of Indian leaders, then in prison.

3. Some Indian leaders had been demanding immediate control of agencies vital to the direction of the war, despite their total inexperience in such things.

4. It would be dangerous to the Allied war effort to attempt to transfer power under such circumstances.

THE GOVERNMENT was wholly unimpressed by an apparent change of heart on the part of the Indian leaders. As I have explained in previous articles, the Indians had come to regret deeply the collapse of the Cripps negotiations over dominion status last summer.

It was clear to me they were sorry for themselves and were prepared to make concessions if the case could be reopened. They even were ready to join the war effort and leave its direction in the hands of the experienced British and Allied command.

However, repentance obviously had come pretty late. By that time, too, the government had the disorders well enough in hand so that it expressed complete confidence in its ability to keep the lid on.

In short the government was so thoroughly fed up with the political position that it was decided to let the whole matter rock until after the war. Observers even expressed the fear to me that England might get disgusted and quit India altogether.

I found nothing to support this idea of withdrawal, however. It isn't one of John Bull's characteristics to quit under fire.

As a matter of fact, despite the All-India Congress' invitation to Britain to quit India in the heat of last summer's political battle, most Indians with whom I talked would consider it a disaster if England withrew her support and guidance before a new constitution had been drawn up and a national government was functioning properly. Some think it would take ten years to reach that point.

So the indications are John Bull intends to carry on until he has completed his task in India. And that still leaves unanswered the question of whether John is stalling, as alleged, in order to continue his rule.

To my mind, the all important fact is that England, whatever may have been her inclinations, actually has given her bond to grant full independence to India.

HERE it is the first of March, with the public being warned to file its income tax return within the next couple of weeks and even congress hasn't made up its mind what to do yet. That's one for the album.

Everybody is supposed to make out a return by March 15 under the law, no matter what congress is doing on the matter. That's law, but it's like expecting a man to get a haircut by 2 p. m. The veteran taxpayers know the routine and will come through on time. But I predict that millions of first-timers, to whom the whole thing is brand new, will hold off on the theory that if congress ain't in a hurry they ain't.

What's the sense of yelling to a man about his duty to act fast and his obligation to regard the tax thing as important when the men he sends to Washington loaf along as if it was something that could wait?

I wonder what the boys in Tunisia and Guadalcanal think about the goings-on at the Boeing plants?

Timely Editorial

Why Petrillo Rules.

James Caesar Petrillo has the power to force practically every musician in the country to join his union. He has the power to tell these musicians when and how and whether or not they can make recordings. He has the private arbitrary power to tell the American people what music they can and cannot hear.

This has just been confirmed by a decision of the highest court in the land. The administration must be perfectly satisfied with this condition of affairs, as it has never proposed any revision in the law to change it.

Congress must acquiesce in this arrangement, because it has never passed, nor is it considering, any law to end it.—New York Times.

Deplores Congressional 'Sniping', FDR Says It Menaces War Effort

WASHINGTON—The president did some blunt sermonizing on the anti-administration revolt in congress when Representative Adolph Sabath of Illinois, venerable, white-haired "dean" of the house, called on him recently.

Commenting on the gang-up of house Republican and Democratic coalitionists against the HOLC appropriation and other administration measures, the president declared that this was not just a case of "playing politics," but, worse, interference with the war effort.

Teamwork between the three branches of government—executive, judicial and legislative—was far more necessary now than in peacetime, he said, yet some members of the senate and house seem bent on stirring up a feud with the executive.

The president added that he did not intend to accept the challenge.

"It takes two to make a fight," he declared sharply. "Congress won't get one from me."

The president observed that he isn't the only war-time chief executive who had trouble with congress.

"President Madison had the same experience during the War of 1812," he said. "We almost lost that war because of congressional pettifogging and interference with Madison's conduct of the war. If it hadn't been for some remarkable action by our navy, I guess we would have lost it."

The president added caustically that the current war might be prolonged if congress persisted in its sharp-shooting.

Congressman Sabath did not argue the point, but gently reminded the president that congress wasn't alone in this sharp-shooting.

"There are a lot of Republicans holding top jobs in the war production board who have no love for you or your administration," said the Chicago representative.

"I picked the best men I could find in industry to run the war production program, Adolph," countered the president. "I didn't care about their politics."

"Yes, but they're against you," repeated Sabath.

"Well, Adolph," replied the president, "what you say may be true. Many of them undoubtedly are opposed to the economic principles you and I stand for. But they're Americans, first, and I don't believe they would do anything to hinder the war effort."

Red Cross Saves Buttons.

MRS. DWIGHT DAVIS, wife of Coolidge's secretary of war and member of the central committee of the American Red Cross, called on President Roosevelt last week to receive from him the first contribution to the Red Cross in its national drive for funds.

In return for his contribution, Mrs. Davis slipped through FDR's button-hole a little paper tab with a Red Cross marked on it.

"But where is my button?" asked the president.

"We aren't using buttons this year," explained Mrs. Davis, "we are saving metal."

Then she went on to point out that even the small amount of metal used for Red Cross buttons ran into sizable figures measured in terms of war goods, and that they were using paper tabs instead. Actually the Red Cross will save 52 tons of metal this way—enough to build one medium sized tank plus eight jeeps.

Why They Fight.

HERE is the behind-the-scenes incident which brought the recent crisis inside the War Production board and led to the dismissal of Ferdinand Eberstadt as its vice-chairman.

The issue was some machine tools not being used by Army Ordnance and which Charles E. Wilson, in charge of WPB production, wanted shifted for use on airplanes. It was a question of taking the machine tools from one branch of the army—ordnance—and using them for another branch of the army—the air corps—and involved the old rivalry between the ground and air forces.

Ordnance has been using the tools for making tanks, and the tank program was well along, while the airplane program needed spurring, especially forgings for crank shafts which is one bottleneck of airplane production.

Wilson, as former head of General Electric, having spent his life at production, knew what Eberstadt, a banker, and what army men, trained to fight, did not know—namely, how to adapt these big machine-tool hammers to airplane production instead of letting them remain idle in ordnance plants.

But when Wilson asked Eberstadt for the tools, Eberstadt declined to release them from ordnance. Eberstadt is close to the army-navy, was reputed to take advice from them. The machine tools division was under him.

"I've got to have those machine tools," Wilson remonstrated.

"Machine tools are my province and you can't have them," Eberstadt replied.

"Then I'll take 'em anyway," countered Wilson.

That was what led to the order by WPB boss Donald Nelson removing the machine tools division from Eberstadt and transferring it to Wilson. It was this row, with the army-navy vigorously going to bat for their friend Eberstadt and pulling wires behind the scenes to get Nelson's head, which led to Eberstadt's dismissal.

Close-Up of Fighting In Tunisia; Arabs Show Friendliness To Yanks.

THE TUNISIAN FRONT — (By Wireless — Captain Jed Dailey of Sharon, Mass., got back safely in his jeep after the German break-through out of Faid Pass. But he had a horrible time.

He was beating it to the rear across the desert, along with the rest of the command post's personnel, when suddenly he saw a Mark Four tank staring him in the face not a hundred yards away.

The tank was stopped, the crew had the turret door open, and a German was just standing there, looking at Captain Dailey as cold as ice. It was enough to give you the creeps. Jed swung the jeep around—and there was another Mark Four staring at him. He kept turning and dodging, but everywhere he could go he would be looking smack at the front end of a Mark Four. They just seemed to appear from nowhere, and there they'd be suddenly, until he felt like a mouse trying to get out of a room full of silent cats.

ERNIE PYLE

Finally Jed did the only thing left to do. He took his heart in his hand and drove right between two German tanks, with their crews sitting there at the guns and looking at him as he passed 50 yards away.

They didn't shoot, and he doesn't know to this day why they didn't.

Then he stepped on that jeep and went soaring across the desert, flying over irrigation ditches you'd normally cross in low gear. German artillery got after him. They dropped an 88 on his right, and then one on his left, and then one in front of him. They had him pocketed.

When artillery does that, the next shot always gets you. But they never fired a fourth shell. He has no idea why. It was just kind of like a miracle.

Things like that went on all afternoon. Finally it got dark, and a sort of safety came. But it wasn't complete safety, for German patrols were out scouring the desert for stragglers.

Jed finally got away by driving the jeep straight up over the top of a mountain and down the other side. He just missed driving over several sheer cliffs. From now on he hates Germans.

Most of the men who survived the German's surprise break-through on the first day of the Sbeitla battle lost everything they had. Major "Satch" Elkins of College Station, Tex., came out with only the clothes on his back. But he resented most losing 300 razor blades to the Germans.

ONE soldier was sore as a hornet because the day before he had gathered up his inertia and accomplished the nasty job of writing six long overdue letters home. Now the Germans have them, and he has that writing job to do all over.

Again, Jed Dailey lost his camera and a dozen rolls of film he had been taking for months. One of them was a foolish picture, such as the soberest of adults sometimes indulges in. He had picked some desert flowers, stuck them behind his ears, and posed for the camera making a silly face.

"The Germans will develop those films for what information they can get," he says. "And when they come to the one of an American officer with flowers behind his ears, they'll probably tell Goebbels to put it out on the radio that Americans are sissies."

One soldier told me his most vivid impression of the afternoon was seeing 10 brand new tires burning up on the wheels of a huge American truck.

"With rubber so short at home, and tires rationed," he said, "it seemed awful to see those brand new ones burning."

Another soldier said, "You damn fools, here's the sky full of planes, and the country full of tanks, and 88s dropping all around you, and you're worrying about tires!"

Lieut. Col. George Sutherlin of Shreveport, La., and Lieut. Robert Simons, Jr., of Columbus, O., walked 29 miles across the desert that night. They had a compass, and it saved them.

We had been talking about them while they were missing.

"George will show up," one officer said. "I'll bet any amount of money on it. Hell, the Germans will turn him loose after two days, to get rid of him before he talks them to death." And show up he did.

He and Junior Simons say they consider the compass the most valuable piece of equipment the army issues. They had one horrible experience that night. An Arab they encountered in the desert ran them almost into the hands of a German patrol. They escaped only by lying deathly still, hardly breathing, for an hour, while the Germans hunted within a few yards of them. But another Arab balanced the account by getting out of bed to give them drinking water.

They were so thirsty that they didn't take time to purify it with the pills they carried, but at this writing they are still feeling fine.

MOST men who walked to safety through the desert that night and the following night were helped by Arabs. I've heard of only two cases where Arabs refused to help Americans. One put "Satch" Elkins into a ditch, and covered him with a long rope from a well, and another Arab walked 25 miles leading some enlisted men to safety.

The statistics of those awful nights of fleeing, crawling and hiding from death show that Arabs were 99 per cent with us. Many hundreds of grateful Americans wouldn't be alive today if the Arabs hadn't helped them.

Farmer's Diary

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

THE WINDBREAK

THE LOW gray farmhouse where Great Uncle Malachi and Aunt Rhoda lived was on a rise that topped a long sweep of open country. Uncle himself planted the windbreak that shielded the premises on two sides—three rows of trees and shrubs that cornered into the northwest. Beside the windbreak, the outlet of the spring trickled through, and there was an enticing little path that led a barefoot boy on—and on.

"Them trees was the cheapest and best piece of improvement I ever put on the place," Uncle told me more than once. "Livin' here alongside it all these years, I've had a lot of good satisfaction out o' that windbreak!"

"You mean because it made your home more comfortable?"

"Yes, that — and more. It keeps the snow from pilin' up in the barnyard so's I have to shovel paths after every blizzard. And when fields are fallow it keeps dust from settlin' all over Rhody's flowers and clean porch and windows. It keeps folks from starin' in who pass on the main road.

"The old almanac says a windbreak protects an area eight times its own height, and I believe it. It wasn't hard to do, the way we done it. We took the trees that grow fastest in these parts—locusts, pines, and lilacs. The pines didn't grow so high, but bushier like, and birds found good protection.

"There's something mighty humanlike about them trees," he went on, pointing to the gnarly locusts in the background. They stand there like they're proud to be a protection to us. And the pines stand there always so primped up and neat, and they smell so good! Seems too that when a storm comes harder'n ever and tries the strength of the roots on the western side, they go down deeper after that, gettin' ready for the next big blow. When they give us the most protection is when they get stronger for the doin' of it.

"Sometimes I think it's like the widow's meal in the Bible—or the story of the miraculous pitcher. Whoever gives the best he's got when somebody needs it has even more to give the next one who comes along in need. The good smell of them pines is always there, whether I'm there to smell 'em or not. The needles of them pines will make a soft bed that'll get thicker and thicker every year. Every spring when purple and white lilacs bloom, and the locust trees are white like snowdrifts, it's just like heaven out here" . . . he stopped, abashed by his own wordiness.

"Pears like, when Rhoda and me planted that windbreak, Ma Nature give us a mighty big reward for doin' so little.'"

Take Care of Make Kitchen Safe for Tot

By GARRY C. MYERS, Ph.D.

The kitchen is a perilous place for the tot from one to five. Yet it is about the most interesting, and an educational place for him. There his mother is for several hours a day. He wants to be where she is, talk to her, have her talk to him and answer all his questions.

Standing by the sink he likes to pour water into milk bottles. She making things from dough, gives him a piece of it to push his fingers into, flatten or roll out, or even make into a "cake" or "pie" she bakes in the oven for him. Or, with his toy stove the kitchen tools he might choose to go through the whole process in make believe.

If it is a roomy kitchen, let him have a safe shelf or box in the corner for his things. Perhaps he has a vise fastened to the kitchen table near this corner, to hold a narrow soft piece of wood he saws. Into a larger, thicker piece of soft board, he likes to drive nails—big-headed ones, with a big-headed hammer that has a short handle. At first he may need a little help, even to have some nails started for him. There, even when no older than two or three, he can have safe fun for long stretches at a time.

What about the hazards? The mother will first train herself to be very careful, to leave no hot liquid on the floor or near the edge of anything above him. She will keep all handles turned back from the front of the stove, sink or table.

This is not enough, however, for her tot's safety. In addition, she will train him never to be at dangerous forbidden places in the kitchen, such as near the stove, nor to reach above him on the stove, sink or table; nor to touch the gas jet.

She will effect this training when the child on beginning to toddle first goes to the kitchen, and she will budget at least a week when she always will be in the kitchen while he is there. Every time he goes to a forbidden place, reaches for the gas jet or above his head to the dangerous places there, he will get immediate spanking.

After the first time there will be no warning, shouting at him or pulling him away. Instead, he will receive instant punishment, as surely as if he had touched an electric button setting off his mother's hand. Always right after getting such pain, his attention will be turned to what he may do and is likely to get pleasure from.

My special bulletin "How Teach Tot Meaning of No" may be had without cost by writing me in care of this paper enclosing a self-addressed envelop with a three-cent stamp on it.

Q. Divorced from my husband my only child five years old and I live with my parents who keep him while I work. They are spoiling him, I fear. Wouldn't it be better for me to live alone, put the child in a kindergarten and have some one care for him at other times, in my absence?

A. In some extreme cases it might be better, nevertheless, you can afford to overlook many errors in those grandparents in order to have their care of the child, the emotional security they may supply him, and the masculine contact with the grandfather.

Improve Your Makeup Technique

By MME. QUI VIVE

Improvement in makeup technique is apparent wherever women assemble. No doubt you have noticed that the lithographic face is no longer with us. Maybe it is the war. Perhaps the pretty dollies are conserving commercial blushes, spreading on the lipstick in a thinner film. Whatever the reason, the effect is all to the good.

Until recently there has been some pretty awful hand painting on display on the faces of misguided dames who fancied that if a bit of rouge is flattering, more will make them strike the bull's eye of the beauty target. Now they are getting cosmetic conscious. They are finding out that it is easier to add to makeup than to subtract from and they know when to stop.

Among faults that are still with us is the practice of not tinting the entire surfaces of the lips, going skimpy at the corners. That's just carelessness, though some girls imagine that it makes the mouth look smaller. The rosebud pucker is no longer considered interesting. If the other features are large, it throws them out of character. A mouth of normal proportions makes the face more vivid than the small one.

Forming a bow that isn't there is another error. Follow the natural outline.

In the matter of applying rouge, every woman should remember that too much adds to the appearance of age. A light film gives the skin freshness. Some women look better without the synthetic blush. It is an individual problem.

Place the pigment high, so as to call attention to the eyes, the most interesting feature. Pass the pad lightly over the eyelids to the cheek bones, then out a little way, down, then back up under the eyes, forming a triangle. The red apple circle, which is the usual pattern, is not so good. Nature seldom lays on the blush that way.

Powder first, then rouge, and powder again, blending carefully. Distinct border lines make artifice too apparent. Heretofore we never cared if we looked made up; now we do. There is a swing back to more natural effects.

If the nose is large, use a darker shade of powder on it. If the chin recedes, use lighter powder there. It is surprising what one can do with two shades of powder. You dim down the poor points, light up the good ones.

Says a beauty specialist: "If a woman can't learn to use makeup to good effect, if the synthetic coloring doesn't make her look lovelier, she shouldn't use it at all. Many a woman, especially the elderly girls, appear better as is."

KOBACKER'S

A Suggestion From Maurice . . .
Beauty supplies are not easily procurable, that's true. But substitutes have been supplied to meet that need.
There is no substitute, however, for good cosmetologists who are scarce . . . whose time is limited.
You will do yourself a favor if you will allow them to serve your beauty needs early this spring . . . now, in fact, before the business of beauty reaches its spring season height.
We feel you will want to conform with this suggestion. And for this cooperation, we thank you.
